WAKE UP!

time flies, and they who are always dozing over time are apt to be left. We are offering a stock of alarm clocks that are striking examples in this line. Mark time—march! They'll do both—mark good common time, march out at the double-quick, just as soon as you. Our public get the facts of qualities and prices. The movements of all our clocks are so good that we guarantee them as accurate time keepers, and their appearance so artistic that they are not less ornamental than useful. Our entire stock of clocks is going at very reasonable figures.

THREE SESSIONS A DAY.

The State Legislature Proposes now to Hustle.

ST. PAUL, March 23. The legislature now has but twenty-four working days left even if the session does not adjourn until the last day, by law allowed, expires. There are now on general orders in the house 235 bills, and over 500 bills in the hands of committees and many of the latter will never see the light of day. The members see the necessity for hard work and a resolution was adopted on Tuesday making three sessions a day, the evening to be devoted exclusively to general orders. This will give ample opportunity for the passage or defeat of the more important measures before the house and senate.

Re apportionment now seems to be agitating the minds of the solons more than at any one time, and it is quite certain that some action will be taken. The people of Crow Wing county can rest assured on one point. and that is that our county will not be tracked onto a democratic district if Bob Dunn, who is chairman of the committee, can prevent it, and it is almost certain that he has it to handle as he sees best. The sub-committee of the joint re-apportionment committee has drafted a bill which gives the senate 61 members and the house 134, and this bill is to be acted upon at once. In this bill Crow Wing, Mille Lacs and Cass counties are to comprise the 53th district, Todd county goes with Hubbard, Beltrami, Wadena and Becker, and Morrison and Benton are to form the 49th. The latter bill has received much consideration and stands a fair chance of passing. Our district in that event will be given one senator and two representatives.

***

The senate on Tuesday by a vote of 28 to 23 after a hotly contested fight indefinitely postponed the Eaton interest bill. This probably disposes of the vexed interest question for this session.

The women's sufferage bill passed the senate yesterday morning by a vote of 31 to 19. The bill is sweeping in its provisions and were it a law it could not fail to please the most ardent supporter. It has yet to run the gauntlet of the house and even if it passed there will have to be submitted to a vote of the people.

***

The fish and game bill has finally been passed by the senate and was reported by the house committee favorably this morning. This bill has caused a good deal of trouble and anxiety to the game dealers of St. Paul and Minneapolis who appeared before the committee last night and declared that if the bill became a law their business was ruined. Nevertheless the bill will pass. It provides for spring shooting of ducks and allows fishing after April 15th.

***

The primary election law which was under consideration on Wednesday and which was drawn to cover all incorporated cities in Minnesota was amended so as to only effect cities of 40,000 inhabitants and over. While the law may be needed in large cities it certainly would not be a benefit to places the size of Brainerd, as it is cumbersome, expensive and complicated. Small cities, villages and towns want nothing of that kind.

***

A bill introduced by Representative Markham which provides for a tax of five mills per acre on all unoccupied lands in unorganized counties, to be used for road and bridge purposes, passed the house under suspension of the rules this week. This bill if it goes through the senate and becomes a law will be of interest to our Cass county people.

***

Mr. Markham has also introduced a bill providing for paying into the counties in which there are railroad lands out of the gross earnings tax, three per cent per acre per annum. This bill was introduced after the Markham railroad tax bill was killed in the senate.

It might not be amiss here to state that the delegation from our district has the reputation of being the hardest workers in the legislature this session, and are always found upon the side of the people. Speaker Lee is tireless in his endeavors to rule fairly and according to his sense of right and justice, and while his official position gives him plenty to do, it is no uncommon thing for him to take a place upon the floor of the house when there is a measure pending in which he feels an interest, and explain his position. Bob Dunn has toiled early and late for the interests of his constituents, and Crow Wing county has much to thank him for. He has made it possible for our county to remain republican under the re-apportionment bill, and no bill will be acceptable to him or receive his endorsement unless that part is understood. Mr. Fuller while not an orator and seldom rises to address the house at length, is acknowledged to have few equals as a successful laborer for meritorious measures in committees among the members. As to Judge Fleming, our people knew when they elected him that his ability and knowledge of legislative matters would place him in a position to do much for their interests. He has carefully watched and helped to shape all matters of importance that has been under consideration in the house. He has been present to answer to roll call and in his seat every day but one since the session opened and then he was detained by illness. He led the opposition to the capitol bill, and did so in a fearless manner, and his actions will receive the approval of all people. The bill passed the house but not until he had straightened out various kinks in which there might lurk the possibility of a woodchuck. In all other matters he has been fair and just to the people who sent him here and his record will bear the closest scrutiny. Our district has been extremely fortunate this year in having the "By Four," as they were dubbed, to represent them.

Judge Fleming Replies.

I notice that the Brainerd Journal is still trying to provoke a quarrel with me, but it shall not succeed, unless it goes too far, and then only when it has made itself the unmistakable aggressor. If it supposes that I am going to provoke a fight, it is mistaken. Some two or three weeks ago, in commenting on my position on the liability bill, it made statements which were wholly without excuse, and, in a gentlemanly way, I tried to correct the errors, supposing I had an undoubted right to do so. That paper said I had been "convinced", and I admitted it, and said I had been "convinced" of other things, which I would mention, if the editor of that paper had no objections. I am now charged with making insinuations. Just where the insinuations come in, I am unable to see. What I had reference to was this, that while our county may be poorly represented here, I am "convinced" that we succeeded in electing one of our number speaker of the house, and sent to congress, not Michael Doran, but a good stalwart republican, C. K. Davis, the choice of our people. I am also "convinced" that, notwithstanding the statement that I was opposed to it, we succeeded in helping to put the Markham bill through the house, and did what we could to pass the anti-scalper's bill. We also helped to defeat the Winston election bill. Last week we spent two days in a hard fight against the new capitol scheme, and succeeded in securing several amendments to protect the tax payers. These are only samples of our efforts in behalf of the best interests of the people. We are also "convinced" that in all local matters we shall be able to satisfy the people of Crow Wing county that their interests have not been neglected. We will not enumerate them, but suffice it to say, that we believe that when this session closes, everything will be satisfactory, and Cass county and the 15th judicial district will be where they now are, and, with the excellent work and valuable assistance of Mr. Markham and Bob Dunn, we will have succeeded in securing very important legislation to the northern part of our state. If these things are insinuations, and reflect upon anybody, I am sorry for it. About the other matter of my trying to "collect from a certain company," all you need to do Mr. Stivers, is to ask any one of a hundred business men of Brainerd, and they will tell you all about it. I told it to almost everybody. It is no secret. I repeated it the other evening in a committee meeting, and would give it here if it were necessary. You are on the wrong track in that.

St. Paul, March 22nd.

W. A. FLEMING.

THE Journal editor is jealous and envious of Mr. Fleming's prominence and influence in the house, and is seeking to injure his character and standing here while Mr. Fleming is accomplishing so much for our interests in the legislature. When he compares Mr. Flemings usefulness there with his own worthless service to local interests, he gets frantic and pours out a half a column of abuse, all lies, through the columns of the Journal upon Mr. Fleming. His abuse of Mr. Fleming is all the more detestable, when we consider that Mr. Fleming four years ago devoted whole days of his time to defeat a bill backed by the entire state bar association to especially accommodate Mr. Stivers. This is a specimen of the Journal editor's gratitude.

WE are sorry that the Tribune feels so badly because we first published the news concerning Postmaster Durham's probable successor when his time should expire. Better get out and hustle for news than cry when you get left, is our advise to Bro. Halstead.

IF the character of Judge Egan, of the Ramsey county district, court is of the quality intimated by Ignatius Donnelly in the senate on Monday, he ought to be impeached and removed from the bench.

THE senate has passed the woman suffrage bill by a vote of 30 to 19. Ladies get ready to cast your vote for the republican candidate for president four years hence.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Crow Wing. }

In Probate Court.

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Thomas Wadham, deceased, late of said county, has been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Eliza Wadham has filed therewith her petition, representing, among other things, that said Thomas Wadham, died in said county on the 28th day of November, 18[illegible]7, testate, and that said petitioner is the executrix named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the probate office in said county, on the 17th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for, or contest, the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Brainerd Dispatch, a weekly newspaper printed and published at the city of Brainerd in said county.

Dated at Brainerd, the 18th day of March, A. D. 1893.

By the Court:
MILTON McFADDEN,
Judge of Probate.

WALKING SHOES!

are in demand now because Spring is here, and with it comes the walking season. Our shoe store is an habitual record breaker, but this year we'll make them shake a leg to keep in sight of us. Our stock of Ladies' and Gents' Walking Shoes excels anything ever before seen in Brainerd. Trash finds no place here. All our stock is first class, containing only shoes that are excellent both in shape and quality — shoes which fit the foot and satisfy the eye. All our customers save money on their purchases. This week we are offering a full and complete line of Burley & Usher's celebrated Children's Shoes. A splendid line of Ladies' Oxfords, in which are some great bargains. The well known "Henrietta" in all styles, and many other attractions.

THREE SESSIONS A DAY.

The State Legislature Proposes now to Hustle.

ST. PAUL, March 23. The legislature now has but twenty-four working days left even if the session does not adjourn until the last day, by law allowed, expires. There are now on general orders in the house 235 bills, and over 500 bills in the hands of committees and many of the latter will never see the light of day. The members see the necessity for hard work and a resolution was adopted on Tuesday making three sessions a day, the evening to be devoted exclusively to general orders. This will give ample opportunity for the passage or defeat of the more important measures before the house and senate.

***

Re apportionment now seems to be agitating the minds of the solons more than at any one time, and it is quite certain that some action will be taken. The people of Crow Wing county can rest assured on one point. and that is that our county will not be tracked onto a democratic district if Bob Dunn, who is chairman of the committee, can prevent it, and it is almost certain that he has it to handle as he sees best. The sub-committee of the joint re-apportionment committee has drafted a bill which gives the senate 61 members and the house 134, and this bill is to be acted upon at once. In this bill Crow Wing, Mille Lacs and Cass counties are to comprise the 53th district, Todd county goes with Hubbard, Beltrami, Wadena and Becker, and Morrison and Benton are to form the 49th. The latter bill has received much consideration and stands a fair chance of passing. Our district in that event will be given one senator and two representatives.

***

The senate on Tuesday by a vote of 28 to 23 after a hotly contested fight indefinitely postponed the Eaton interest bill. This probably disposes of the vexed interest question for this session.

The women's sufferage bill passed the senate yesterday morning by a vote of 31 to 19. The bill is sweeping in its provisions and were it a law it could not fail to please the most ardent supporter. It has yet to run the gauntlet of the house and even if it passed there will have to be submitted to a vote of the people.

***

The fish and game bill has finally been passed by the senate and was reported by the house committee favorably this morning. This bill has caused a good deal of trouble and anxiety to the game dealers of St. Paul and Minneapolis who appeared before the committee last night and declared that if the bill became a law their business was ruined. Nevertheless the bill will pass. It provides for spring shooting of ducks and allows fishing after April 15th.

***

The primary election law which was under consideration on Wednesday and which was drawn to cover all incorporated cities in Minnesota was amended so as to only effect cities of 40,000 inhabitants and over. While the law may be needed in large cities it certainly would not be a benefit to places the size of Brainerd, as it is cumbersome, expensive and complicated. Small cities, villages and towns want nothing of that kind.

***

A bill introduced by Representative Markham which provides for a tax of five mills per acre on all unoccupied lands in unorganized counties, to be used for road and bridge purposes. passed the house under suspension of the rules this week. This bill if it goes through the senate and becomes a law will be of interest to our Cass county people.

***

Mr. Markham has also introduced a bill providing for paying into the counties in which there are railroad lands out of the gross earnings tax, three per cent per acre per annum. This bill was introduced after the Markham railroad tax bill was killed in the senate.

***

It might not be amiss here to state that the delegation from our district has the reputation of being the hardest workers in the legislature this session, and are always found upon the side of the people. Speaker Lee is tireless in his endeavors to rule fairly and according to his sense of right and justice, and while his official position gives him plenty to do, it is no uncommon thing for him to take a place upon the floor of the house when there is a measure pending in which he feels an interest, and explain his position. Bob Dunn has toiled early and late for the interests of his constituents, and Crow Wing county has much to thank him for. He has made it possible for our county to remain republican under the re-apportionment bill, and no bill will be acceptable to him or receive his endorsement unless that part is understood. Mr. Fuller while not an orator and seldom rises to address the house at length, is acknowledged to have few equals as a successful laborer for meritorious measures in committees among the members. As to Judge Fleming, our people knew when they elected him that his ability and knowledge of legislative matters would place him in a position to do much for their interests. He has carefully watched and helped to shape all matters of importance that has been under consideration in the house. He has been present to answer to roll call and in his seat every day but one since the session opened and then he was detained by illness. He led the opposition to the capitol bill, and did so in a fearless manner, and his actions will receive the approval of all people. The bill passed the house but not until he had straightened out various kinks in which there might lurk the possibility of a woodchuck. In all other matters he has been fair and just to the people who sent him here and his record will bear the closest scrutiny. Our district has been extremely fortunate this year in having the "By Four," as they were dubbed, to represent them.

Judge Fleming Replies.

I notice that the Brainerd Journal is still trying to provoke a quarrel with me, but it shall not succeed, unless it goes too far, and then only when it has made itself the unmistakable aggressor. If it supposes that I am going to provoke a fight, it is mistaken. Some two or three weeks ago, in commenting on my position on the liability bill, it made statements which were wholly without excuse, and, in a gentlemanly way, I tried to correct the errors, supposing I had an undoubted right to do so. That paper said I had been "convinced", and I admitted it, and said I had been "convinced" of other things, which I would mention, if the editor of that paper had no objections. I am now charged with making insinuations. Just where the insinuations come in, I am unable to see. What I had reference to was this, that while our county may be poorly represented here, I am "convinced" that we succeeded in electing one of our number speaker of the house, and sent to congress, not Michael Doran, but a good stalwart republican, C. K. Davis, the choice of our people. I am also "convinced" that, notwithstanding the statement that I was opposed to it, we succeeded in helping to put the Markham bill through the house, and did what we could to pass the anti-scalper's bill. We also helped to defeat the Winston election bill. Last week we spent two days in a hard fight against the new capitol scheme, and succeeded in securing several amendments to protect the tax payers. These are only samples of our efforts in behalf of the best interests of the people. We are also "convinced" that in all local matters we shall be able to satisfy the people of Crow Wing county that their interests have not been neglected. We will not enumerate them, but suffice it to say, that we believe that when this session closes, everything will be satisfactory, and Cass county and the 15th judicial district will be where they now are, and, with the excellent work and valuable assistance of Mr. Markham and Bob Dunn, we will have succeeded in securing very important legislation to the northern part of our state. If these things are insinuations, and reflect upon anybody, I am sorry for it. About the other matter of my trying to "collect from a certain company," all you need to do Mr. Stivers, is to ask any one of a hundred business men of Brainerd, and they will tell you all about it. I told it to almost everybody. It is no secret. I repeated it the other evening in a committee meeting, and would give it here if it were necessary. You are on the wrong track in that.

St. Paul, March 22nd.

W. A. FLEMING.

THE Journal editor is jealous and envious of Mr. Fleming's prominence and influence in the house, and is seeking to injure his character and standing here while Mr. Fleming is accomplishing so much for our interests in the legislature. When he compares Mr. Flemings usefulness there with his own worthless service to local interests, he gets frantic and pours out a half a column of abuse, all lies, through the columns of the Journal upon Mr. Fleming. His abuse of Mr. Fleming is all the more detestable, when we consider that Mr. Fleming four years ago devoted whole days of his time to defeat a bill backed by the entire state bar association to especially accommodate Mr. Stivers. This is a specimen of the Journal editor's gratitude.

WE are sorry that the Tribune feels so badly because we first published the news concerning Postmaster Durham's probable successor when his time should expire. Better get out and hustle for news than cry when you get left, is our advise to Bro. Halstead.

IF the character of Judge Egan, of the Ramsey county district, court is of the quality intimated by Ignatius Donnelly in the senate on Monday, he ought to be impeached and removed from the bench.

THE senate has passed the woman suffrage bill by a vote of 30 to 19. Ladies get ready to cast your vote for the republican candidate for president four years hence.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Crow Wing. }

In Probate Court.

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Thomas Wadham, deceased, late of said county, has been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Eliza Wadham has filed therewith her petition, representing, among other things, that said Thomas Wadham, died in said county on the 28th day of November, 1887, testate, and that said petitioner is the executrix named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the probate office in said county, on the 17th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for, or contest, the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Brainerd Dispatch, a weekly newspaper printed and published at the city of Brainerd in said county.

Dated at Brainerd, the 18th day of March, A. D. 1893.

By the Court:
MILTON MCFADDEN,
Judge of Probate.

WALKING SHOES!

are in demand now because Spring is here, and with it comes the walking season. Our shoe store is an habitual record breaker, but this year we'll make them shake a leg to keep in sight of us. Our stock of Ladies' and Gents' Walking Shoes excels anything ever before seen in Brainerd. Trash finds no place here. All our stock is first class, containing only shoes that are excellent both in shape and quality — shoes which fit the foot and satisfy the eye. All our customers save money on their purchases. This week we are offering a full and complete line of Burley & Usher's celebrated Children's Shoes. A splendid line of Ladies' Oxfords, in which are some great bargains. The well known "Henrietta" in all styles, and many other attractions.

Since the Cape diamond fields were discovered in 1867, 50,000,900 carats of stones, valued at $350,000,000, have been exported. These would load up two big coal trains.

In England toads are valued as destroyers of insects and are offered for sale at a shilling apiece, it is said, in the London markets, being bought by market gardeners.

Nineteen senators use but five letters each in spelling their names. The list begins with Allen and ends with White. Nine of the names are of two syllables and ten of but one syllable each.

A tax of 10 francs a year is to be levied on pianos in France, those used by professional players being exempted. The measure imposing the tax passed the chamber by a vote of 307 to 145.

The most indestructible wood in the Jarrah wood of Western Australia, which defies all known forms of decay, and is untouched by all destructive insects, so that ships built of it do not need to be coppered.

The admission of seven ladies to fellowship in the Royal Geographical society has stirred up a big fuss, and the other fellows, which is to say the masculine ones, threaten to contest the action legally.

George Erskine, a lost boy about fifteen years of age, has just been discovered by his mother working in the coal mines at Shenandoah, Pa. He ran away from Girard college, Philadelphia, about two years ago.

The severe cold and deep snows in the Northwest have caused many wild animals to venture near the settlements in search of food. A mountain lion, measuring 7 feet and 11 inches in length, was killed recently near Orting, Wash.

There are now nearly 200 women practicing dentistry in the United States. Although it is about thirty years since the first woman began practice in this profession, it is only within the last ten years that the number entering the profession has become considerable.

While William Parker, a resident of Laurel, Del., was dredging for oysters the other day, he caught an old stove which had been on the bottom so that mud had collected, and to this oysters were attached, the oven being full of bivalves.

President Harrison placed four jurists on the supreme bench during his administration. This record has been beaten twice only—Washington named all the members of the first court and then nominated four chief justices, and Lincoln chose five. Grant, in his two terms, named four.

In Palestine seedtime and harvest occur to-day precisely as they did according to records supposed to be thirty-three centuries old. During thousands of years in China there has been no change in the character of their cultivated plants, in the dates of breeding of silk worms or of the migration of birds.

A gentleman of Downderry, Cornwall, who thrashed a man for annoying some lady bathers was fined $50 by the local court, but the ladies of the neighborhood at once collected money among themselves and presented him a gold scarf-pin set with diamonds and a check for $150.

Capt. J. B. Sawyer, who is reputed to be the oldest living locomotive engineer in this country, was married to Mrs. Jennie Wagenhouse on board a train on the Texas & Pacific railroad the other day. Mr. Sawyer is eighty years old and his wife is about thirty-five years of age.

Statistics show that the law of chances governs in the vast majority of cases the ages at which men marry, who are engaged in certain occupations. Workmen and artisans take unto themselves wives at an earlier age than those who vocations are of a more intellectual kind.

One curious effect of the recent cold snap was that the traffic in tutti-frutti and chocolate tablets by means of automatic salesmen was seriously interrupted. Persons who attempted to secure chewing gum or chocolate by putting a "penny" in the slot found that the coin wouldn't fit. The cold had shrunk the iron top.

Certain ladies charged with the duty of obtaining data for a study of young humanity, now send to new mothers little blank books provided with questions as to when the baby first exhibited the sense of hearing, when he first took note of light, what were his earliest signs of distress and many more such. The questions are designed to furnish hints for an investigation extending over the first four years of the child's life. In time all the books will be collected and sent to Germany as aids to the persons who are one day to announce the results of an elaborate study of mental developments during infancy and early childhood.

Novelties of Crime.

A dentist's showcase was recently smashed by a thief, who carried off a quantity of false teeth. It was placed near the front door to attract notice, and the question naturally occurs, What can the thief do with his booty?

Another curious feature in crime is found in Henry Villard's butler, who had been for several months stealing the silver, and yet was only recently detected. He stole only that which could the most easily be spared, and thus the loss was not noticed until at last he made a final haul, intending to abscond, but was caught.

It may be added that the pillage by servants in New York is really frightful. Many of this class, indeed, hire out for this purpose, only remain in a family long enough to make a sufficient swoop, and then disappear with the plunder. Nurses also steal habitually, and a number of this class is now under arrest for robbing their patients. Larceny, indeed, permeates society to such an extent that bolts and bars are of but little avail, for it is not the outside, but the inside thief that is to be feared.—Yonkers Statesman.

THE NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

DIGEST OF THE NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

All Important Occurrences of the Past Week, Boiled Down and Arranged for Rapid Reading.

Washington.

Mr. Hepburn, the controller of the currency, has called for a report of the condition of national banks at the close of business Monday, March 6, 1893.

The treasury department is advised that no gold has been engaged from the New York subtreasury for shipment. The next day for shipment is Friday, and no gold is expected to be exported then.

Customs receipts are increasing, and during the month of March it is anticipated that they will foot up $18,000,000. For the first ten days of this month the receipts at the port of New York aggregated $4,206,000, as against $3,905,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Secretary Smith has directed that all orders heretofore issued by the commissioner of the general land office making cases special be revoked. Hereafter cases before the general land office will be taken up and disposed of in their regular order.

Accidental Happenings.

The Gilmer lumber mill at Orange, Tex., burned. Loss, $22,000.

The electric light plant at Mount Vernon, Ill., burned. Loss, $8,000.

Long Island has experienced another earthquake shock.

Wiler & Wise's dry goods store at Logansport, Ind., burned. The loss is $25,000.

August Stanley and Henry Johnson, two hunters, were drowned in the Kankakee river near Valparaiso, Ind.

Frederick Fladden, an early settler of Galena, Ill., was struck by a train and instantly killed. He was eighty years old.

A collission occurred at Duluth between two St. Paul & Duluth engines, and six persons were injured, Eugene Fargo probably fatally.

J. H. Cartwright, a prominent young attorney, was drowned at Ottawa, Ill., by the capsizing of a canoe. His companion, Edgar Eldredge, was rescued.

A Reading locomotive boiler exploded at St. Elmo, N. Y., and Fireman Schufeld and Brakeman Lambert were killed. Engineer Lannigan was fatally injured.

Three firemen were injured by a falling wall at Minneapolis. The block at 247 and 249 Hennepin avenue burned. Loss, $60,000.

H. H. Goldthwaite, a traveling salesman, accidentally shot and killed his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Pischon, at Fort Wayne, Ind. He had just cleaned his revolver.

Willie O'Donnell, aged eleven, met a horrible death in an elevator at San Francisco. His head was caught beneath a projecting ledge while he tried to look out, and his neck was broken.

The British steamer Wells City, Capt. Savage, of the Bristol City line, which sailed from Bristol, Feb. 21, and Swansea Feb. 23, went ashore in a dense fog, broadside on, at Seabright, N. J. She is a total loss. The crew was rescued.

One-half of the town of Arkansas City, Ark., was burned recently. The elevator, warehouse and twelve loaded cars of the Valley route, a branch of the Iron Mountain road, several stores and the Townsend hotel were destroyed. One of the firemen, named Calling, was burned to death. Loss about $100,000.

Personal Mention.

Hon Thomas C. Platt has resigned the presidency of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company. He says he has too much else to do.

The Sun says that ex-President Harrison is to receive $1,000 apiece for each of his ten law lectures in the annual course at Leland Stanford, Jr., university.

Mrs. Besant has arrived in London, where she is reported to have said that the results of her tour in this country convince her that "theosophy has a great future before it in America."

Sixty-one naval officers will be retired on account of the age limit during President Cleveland's administration. The best know is Rear Admiral Gherardi, who will retire from active duty on Nov. 10, 1894.

The president and cabinet will attend the naval review at New York if the state of public business will permit. If the president finds that he cannot go he will send Secretary Herbert as his representative.

"Edna Lyall" is quite well again, after a long period of ill health. She is at Eastbourne, Eng., where her brother-in-law is a curate, engaged on a new novel of modern English life under the title of "To Right the Wrong."

Dr. Ohlmuller, of the imperial board of health at Berlin, announces the discovery that ozone is fatal to the bacilli of cholera and typhus fever. In his experiments it killed the former in five minutes and the latter in two minutes.

Among the Wicked.

A Milwaukee lady was murdered by her lover, who also destroyed himself.

Five counterfeiters have been arrested at Parkersburg, W. Va.

Dr. Cass Hamlin was acquitted at Cleveland of the murder of Mrs. Betsy Smith.

A widow and three children were slain by robbers at Salmsdorf, Austria, and their bodies burned.

An appeal for a new trial has been taken by Hugh Dempsey, the convicted Homestead poisoner.

North Dakota.

Ole O. Mpdahl, the oldest man in Cass county, died recently at the age of over ninety-eight years.

All the bills which mysteriously disappeared in the North Dakota legislature are accounted for but one—a railroad bill, the most important of all.

J. F. Jaberg & Co.'s store at Sanborn, was burglarized recently and $300 worth of guns, revolvers and cutlery stolen.

T. W. Griffin, who was sued by the government in the United States court at Bismarck on a hay contract, won a verdict. Some of Griffin's hay was rejected, but it was afterwards accepted when tendered by another man.

Gov. Shortridge has appointed as a commission to compile the laws, Burk Corbett of Grand Forks, C. F. Amyden of Fargo and George W. Nettleton of Bismarck. All are lawyers of good standing, Newton being at the head of the bar of the Sixth district.

Frank Cockburn, a butcher, had about seventy hogs penned a mile west of Devils Lake. He missed a hog now and then, but couldn't account for it. Recently he learned that a man named McColleff sold nine of the hogs to Fred Fox, a butcher, got the cash and skipped East. Nine other hogs are missing.

The state agricultural board refuses to recognize the three new members of the board. During the legislative session the governor nominated three members, but the senate rejected them. After the adjournment Gov. Shortridge appointed the men he had nominated, and now the board rejects them as holding illegal certificates.

Among the appointments failing of confirmation by the senate was that of Kemper Peabody to be public examiner. The governor has issued his commission; he succeeds R. E. Wallace. Mrs. Bartholomew was to-day appointed by the governor state agent for the better enforcement of the law to prevent cruelty to animals.

The passage of the bill appropriating $3,000 for a starch bounty assures the establishment of a starch factory at Grand Forks. The plant will be erected and in operation in time for handling this season's potato crop. Resident stock subscriptions are nearly completed, with the balance in sight. The plant will have a daily capacity of manufacturing 18,000 pounds of starch.

Iowa.

Nearly half the little town of Polk was burned by incendiaries, including the Northwestern's depot and large elevators.

Edward Kildriff, aged twenty-eight, was found dead at his own gate at Clinton after having been out riding till midnight with a friend. A murder theory is held by some to explain the mystery.

Lansing Nichols, editor of the Waucoma Sentinel, came to West Union recently and eloped with Anna Wilber, the daughter of respectable parents. They took a freight train for Cedar Rapids.

Charles Penniwell, a harmless inmate of the insane asylum, escaped and walked about five miles. He confiscated a farmer's team and wagon and was not heard from again until captured by Sheriff Higee near Dumont.

John Jaster, a man who had a life position with the railway company at Des Moines on account of losing a leg a number of years ago, cut his throat from ear to ear last night. He had accumulated considerable property.

A north-bound freight on the Iowa and Minnesota division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul was wrecked near Otranto. The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails. The engineer, George Hazen, jumped, but was crushed under the engine and killed. The engine and several cars were destroyed.

W. B. Miller, living near Manchester, was badly injured while trying to break up a large rock. He poured a quantity of powder into a hole in it and set it on fire with a match which he held in his hand. One leg was broken in three places, one eye was nearly destroyed and his face and hands scorched and blackened.

The pressure of rising water in the Mississippi river caused the levee, which protects the lands of the Illinois bottoms in Lima lake district opposite Canton, Mo., to break, and the lands are being overflowed. The break occurred near the flood gates where Lima lake drains into the river. The damage will be heavy. Men are at work trying to stop the break.

The grand jury of Franklin county has returned an indictment against William Darrow for forgery. At present Darrow is serving out a two years' sentence at Aramosa for robbery, but as soon as he is released he will be tried on the above indictment. A year ago Darrow was tried by the Franklin county courts for the murder of Peter Larson. The principal evidence against the defendant was a note he held against Larson for all his personal effects. It was proven in the course of the trial that Darrow had forged Larson's name to this note and it would have doubtless led to the conviction of the former for murder had the body of Larson been found, but it was not and has not to this day. As it is there are enough charges against him to keep him a long time in the penitentiary.

MINNESOTA LAWMAKERS

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE DAY BY DAY.

Routine Report of the Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature During the Past Week.

MONDAY, MARCH 13.

Senate.

The only bill introduced to-day was one by Senator Craven to prevent fraudulent sales of goods by itinerant venders and to provide for licensing the same.

The senate then went into committee of the whole and spent the greater part of the day on general orders.

House.

The entire day was given over to the discussion of new bills in committee of the whole.

TUESDAY, MARCH 14.

Senate.

The following bills were introduced: To secure an equitable division of the money received from the tax on gross earnings of railroads; to provide for municipal elections in cities of less than 3,000 inhabitants; to prevent a contractor from assigning his interest in a contract without the consent of his sureties; to amend section 8, chapter 1, General Laws of 1878, relating to taxes; to amend section 59, chapter 64, General Laws of 1878, relating to terms of district court in Anoka county; regulating the use of highways by certain vehicles; to amend chapter 145, General Laws of 1885, relating to incorporation of villages; to allow the city of Minneapolis to issue bonds for $75,000 for a city hospital; to amend section 7, chapter 208, General Laws of 1887.

When the order of third reading was reached Senator Leavitt's bill to prevent champerty was first on the list, and was voted down by a vote of 15 to 20. S. F. 45, committee on judiciary's bill relating to suits against receivers, was passed by a vote of 33 to 1.

S. F. 451, committee on judiciary, allowing surety companies to become obligors on official bonds, was passed—37 to 0.

A good many bills on the calendar were in the hands of the engrossing committee and could not be acted upon.

Senator McHale's bill continuing in the judges of the district court official trust imposed upon their predecessors met with no objection, and was passed.

House.

The following bills were introduced: To fix the maximum fare for passengers on mixed trains at 2 cents per mile; to provide for municipal courts in villages of 1,000; to provide for the registry of paupers, insane and feeble-minded persons; to provide for municipal elections in villages of less than 3,000 inhabitants organized under special charters; to enable honorably discharged soldiers to carry on shows without paying license; to establish a district court of appeals in Minnesota; relating to appeals to the supreme court.

Senator Davis' bill appropriating $38,000 to complete the new wing at the Fergus Falls asylum. Passed.

Senator Kelly's bill increasing the bounty for killing wolves. Passed.

Senator Keller's bill legalizing the action of the reformatory board in paying interest on money borrowed to construct cells. Lost.

Senator Comstock's bill relating to the incorporation of villages. Passed.

Senator Stevens' bill relating to the vacation of streets and alleys. Passed.

Senator Crandall's bill compelling railroad companies to post notices of delayed trains. Lost.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15.

Senate.

The following bills were introduced: To authorize the city of Minneapolis to issue $500,000 bonds to build a bridge across the Mississippi river at Sixth avenue south; to amend the act governing the park board of Minneapolis; to provide for an equitable adjustment of prices in selling grain by grade; to authorize cities of the state to aid in the construction of railroad and wagon bridges.

A petition was received from John J. Rhodes, manager of the Minnesota bureau of coal statistics, praying that his books, which had been seized by the coal combine investigating committee, be returned to him. The petition was referred to the coal combine committee.

The senate then went into committee of the whole to consider the Markham bill.

House.

By all odds the most important petition that has come before the house this session was one from John J. Rhodes, manager of the Minnesota bureau of coal statistics, setting forth the circumstances connected with the seizure of his books and asking that they be returned to him. On motion of Mr. Walsh the petition was referred to the coal investigating committee.

The house might as well have been on general orders, for the entire morning session, with the exception of a very few moments, was occupied in debate. The first discussion took place over the disposition of the majority and minority reports of the logs and lumber committee on the Wyman bill to change the system of scaling and make the office of surveyor general a salaried position instead of paying him fees. The majority of the committee favored the indefinite postponement of the bill, and the minority reported a substitute bill which makes the surplus fees of the office payable into the state treasury instead of refunding them to the men who paid them in. The motion to indefinitely postpone both of them was a tie—47 to 47.

The capitol bill was under discussion and consumed the rest of the day.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16.

Senate.

There was but one bill to be introduced:

By Senator Crandall—To provide for a state board of immigration and appropriating money therefor.

Senator Dedon secured the passage of S. F. 233, a bill to appropriate money for the selection of swamp lands for state institutions.

The finance committee reported back the house bill appropriating $15,000 for a monument to the Second Minnesota regiment and Second battery, with an amendment striking out the name of W. A. Spalding from the list of commissioners and inserting the name of Maj. W. A. Hotchkiss, who commanded the battery. In the debate which followed it appeared that the name of Maj. Hotchkiss had been in the original draft of the bill, but owing to the fact that one of the house members was unfriendly to him his name was stricken out. The senate not only put his name in the bill again, but passed the bill under suspension of the rules. Senator Sanborn and Senator Donnelly paid high compliments to Maj. Hotchkiss as a brave soldier and one deserving of more than this slight recognition.

House.

Mr. Greer moved that H. F. No. 170, which is No. 180 on general orders, be given the place of H. F. No. 616, which is No. 32 on general orders. H. F. No. 170 is Mr. Wacek's bill providing for a commissioner to investigate the Torrens and other systems of land transfer, while 616 is to provide for the inspection of pressed meats. The motion prevailed.

Mr. Abbott sent up a resolution asking that H. F. 674, a bill to tax the gross earnings of express companies, be recalled from the judiciary and placed at the head of general orders for Friday. The motion went over under notice of debate by Mr. Greer. The clerk had started to read the bill when Mr. Fletcher threatened to create a sensation by asking how the bill came to be in the possession of the house. Mr. Abbott's explanation was cut short by the notice of debate.

Mr. Walsh then introduced the resolution upholding the coal combine committee in its retention of J. J. Rhodes' books. The resolution was passed.

Mr. Anderson introduced a concurrent resolution inquiring why the lands of the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, acquired while the road was known as the Lake Superior & Mississippi road, and afterward transferred to the present company, have not been on the tax list for the last fifteen years, as the United States district court decided they should have been in 1877, and also why they should not now be placed on the tax list.

FRIDAY MARCH 17.

Senate.

The senate met this morning with no special business to confront it, and with nothing to anticipate from the coal combine.

The following bills were introduced:

To regulate fishing in the waters of Lake Superior and other waters forming part of the international boundary line. To cede civil jurisdiction to the State of North Dakota over an elevator site at Duluth or West Duluth. Relating to the establishment and care of cemeteries.

Senator Stevens moved that the rules be suspended and that H. F. 608, the bill designing to tax sleeping cars, be given its second and third reading and be placed on its final passage. Senator Morse raised an objection to such speedy action, and after the bill had had its third reading it was referred to the judiciary committee. The same action was taken with reference to H. F. 316, another bill on the same subject.

Senator Day's fish and game law was carried on its third reading by a vote of 38 to 11.

Senator Donnelly's bill putting farmers' mutual insurance companies under the control of the state insurance commissioner was also passed, the vote being 41 to 0.

Senator Lienau's bill allowing free employment agencies to be established in cities of more than 30,000 inhabitants was indorsed, 39 to 0.

Senator Dean's corrupt practice act met with a little opposition. Senator Hompe thought it was a useless piece of legislation. Senator Donnelly thought it was a step in the right direction.

The bill was defeated by the lack of one vote. It received 27 votes to 13.

House.

The house committee on legislative expenses this morning recommended that $68.75 be allowed for expenses of the members of the committee which investigated the charges of whipping at St. Cloud. Adopted.

A bill for $3.90 due a St. Paul firm for repairing locks in the hall was also paid.

Resolutions calling for an additional clerk for the appropriation committee a watchman and an assistant file clerk were recommended for indefinite postponement.

Mr. Cairn's resolution to pay Miss Cora Wing, stenographer for the charter commission, until March 19, was recommended to pass. Adopted.

Mr. F. M. Wilson's resolution to pay the cloak room and gallery keepers of the house the same salaries as the senate paid from the beginning of the session was recommended for indefinite postponement.

The committee on legislative expenses recommended the indefinite postponement of the resolution to reimburse R. C. Hinrichs, R. C. Talboys, R. A. Walsh, Dr. Williams and D. M. Sullivan for expenses incurred in the contests for their seats in the house, and recommended the passage of a substitute allowing the successful contestants the following sums: R. A. Walsh, $203.25; R. C. Hinrichs, $280; Dr. Williams, $125, and D. M. Sullivan, $208.95. Mr. Talboys' bill was disallowed altogether.

Dr. Williams declined to accept the sum awarded him and said if the house did not see fit to allow him the whole sum he had nothing to say.

Mr. Young said he did not believe any of the accounts should be allowed any more than the house should pay the campaign expenses of the members.

Mr. Sullivan said the amount allowed him by the committee was wholly out of proportion to the actual expenses incurred, and he declined to accept the sum tendered.

Mr. Walsh said he might be compelled to accept the amount tendered him, but he was strongly disinclined to do so.

Mr. Cairns, chairman of the committee on elections, stated that in many cases the amount asked for in the original resolutions did not cover the actual expenses of the members.

SATURDAY, MARCH 18.

Senate.

Two communications from labor organizations of Minneapolis protesting against any change of the special legislation amendment to the constitution, and touching on a number of other topics were received. Senator Probstfield introduced the only bill of the day:

S. F. 596, by Senator Probstfield—To amend section 29, chapter 81, General Laws of 1887, relating to license.

The capitol bill came in from the house, was ordered printed as amended and referred to the committee on public buildings which is expected to report it back on Monday to be submitted for the senate bill now on general orders. On motion of Senator J. D. Smith the house was requested to return H. F. 467, the homeless children's bill, passed on Friday. The motion was made, some of the members claiming to have voted for it under a misapprehension.

The senate then went into committee of the whole and several measures were acted upon.

House.

The committee on taxes reported a substitute for Mr. Boggs' bill providing for a pro rata distribution of the tax on gross earnings of railroads among the counties in which railroad lands are situated, the substitute providing for each county receiving 3 cents per acre for all railroad lands in their boundaries.

The following bills were introduced: A bill to amend the General Laws of 1889 relating to publication of probate notices; judiciary. A bill to amend the General Laws of 1887 relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors; judiciary. A bill to amend the General Laws of 1878 relating to the descriptions of land for assessment purposes; judiciary. A bill relating to the platting of land in Big Stone county; judiciary.

Will Get Their Seats.

Washington, March 20.—The senate committee on privileges and elections held a meeting this afternoon in regard to the credentials of the appointed senators from the new states. Senator Allen, appointed by the governor of Washington, apeared before the committee and recited the facts connected with his appointment and gave the committee the benefit of his opinion as to the legal questions involved. Mr. Mantle of Montana, and Mr. Beckwith of Wyoming, also appeared and told the story of the contests that resulted in their appointments. After looking up the precedents the committee took a vote, which resulted as follows: For giving the senators their seats, Messrs. Turpie and Pugh, of the Democrats, and Messrs. Chandler, Hoar, and Higgins. Against seating, Messrs. Vance, Palmer and Gray, Democrats, and Mitchell, Republican. Mr. Chandler, in order to prevent a tie and secure a report to the senate, voted in favor of seating the senators, but reserved the right to take such action as he thought best on the floor of the senate. The majority report will be made by Mr. Vance and the minority by Mr. Hoar, early next week.

Increasing Imports.

Washington, Special, March 21.—The advance statement by the bureau of statistics on foreign commerce and immigration for February was issued to-day. The statement is not encouraging. It shows a large decrease in the value of exports during the month and a large increase in the value of imports of merchandise, and consequently a heavy balance against the United States. The value of the exports of merchandise during February was $59,943,888, and imports of merchandise $79,632,148, or an excess of imports and balance of trade against us of $19,688,262. The value of the exports was $26,604,251 less than they were one year ago, and about $15,000,000 less than two years ago. On the other hand, the imports are larger than for any February in previous years.

To Fight the Geary Law.

San Francisco, March 21—The Chinese Six Companies are preparing to make a stubborn fight on the Geary law when it comes before the supreme court, and have retained a number of the best constitutional lawyers in the country to present the case. Joseph H. Choate and Maxwell Evarts of New York and J. Hubby Ashton of Washington are the attorneys chosen to act with Thomas D. Riordan of this city, who expects to go East about the middle of April. Evarts will attend to the preliminaries in New York city, where the first arrest will be made on the day the law goes into effect. Choate and Ashton will present the case to the supreme court.

Dissolution Is Certain.

Berlin, March 21.—The Schlossische Zeitung, organ of Chancellor Caprivi, states on authority that a dissolution will occur at the end of April unless the reichstag passes the army bill. The kaiser has the right to dissolve the reichstag after a vote by the bundesrath, and in that case new elections must take place within sixty days, and a new session must open within ninety days. The utterance of the Schlessiche Zeitung is regarded as an indication that Chancellor von Caprivi is beginning to despair of the passage of the army bill, and that both the kaiser and the chancellor regard the dissolution as the only recourse.

Receivers' Certificates.

Philadelphia, March 21.—It was definitely announced to-day by ex-Chief Justice Paxson, one of the receivers of the Reading, that an issue of receivers' certificates has been decided upon and that the papers would be filed before the close of the week. No information could be had as to how large an issue of certificates is in contemplation, but bankers estimated it at anywhere from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000. It is probable that the application for authority to issue receivers' certificates will be combated by the general mortgage bondholders' committee.

Deadly Explosion.

Rome, Iowa, March 21.—At a saw mill seven miles north of here, by the explosion of a boiler which was allowed to run out of water, four men were killed and several wounded. The dead are: John Adams, a saw tender; Eugene Gilds, engineer; Townsley Boldojier, a workman; Esheman, a boy. The owner of the mill and Theodore Lillie are probably fatally injured. The explosion completely wrecked the mill.

Beatification for Joan of Arc.

Rome, March 21.—Pope Leo has informed the French bishops of his decision to crown his episcopal jubilee by the beatification of the French heroine, Joan of Arc, who was burned by the English as a sorceress and heretic May 30, 1431, and was formally pronounced to have been innocent in 1456. The pope has ordered the congregation of rites to expedite the preliminaries for the beatification.

DEATH IN AN EXPLOSION.

INCINERATION IS THE FATE OF A MILLWRIGHT.

He Falls a Victim to a Terrible Explosion That Wrecks a Flour Mill and Entails a Loss of Nearly a Million Dollars.

Burned to a Crisp.

Litchfield, Ill., March 21—An explosion resembling an earthquake and destroying nearly a million dollars' worth of property, occurred here this morning. The loss of a life and the injury of a number of people resulted from the catastrophe. Practically every business structure in Litchfield was wrecked, and scores of dwellings rendered uninhabitable. Early in the day an alarm of fire was turned in, and, upon investigation, it developed that the Litchfield "Planet" mills, located in the southwest part of the city, was in flames. Before the firemen arrived upon the scene the fire had gained such headway that for some time nothing could be done to check it, and it seemed as if the entire south part of the town would be consumed. The fire is supposed to have originated by a spark from a passing locomotive falling in one of the dust rooms. The hose and hook and ladder companies had hardly succeeded in getting their apparatus in working order when an explosion, appalling in its violence, was caused by the flames' sudden contact with pent-up mill dust. The explosion shook the earth over a singularly wide area, while the atmospheric concussion was felt as far as Decatur, a distance of fifty miles. The head millwright, John Carve of Waterloo, in making an effort to secure his tools from the blazing building, was stunned by the explosion, and, endeavoring to escape, was pinned against the smoke stack and burned to death. When found about three hours afterwards his legs were burned off at the hips, the right arm and left hand were entirely consumed, and his body burned to a crisp.

Three large elevators standing immediately across the Wabash track, west of the mill, containing some 250,000 bushels of wheat, was quickly in flames, and, together with its valuable contents, burned to the ground. Ten or twelve cars of wheat standing on the track were reduced to ashes. A large pile of debris about ten or fifteen feet high fell on the main track of the Wabash railroad, and, as a consequence, traffic on that road is badly impaired. The Western Union telegraph wires are also down, which makes matters a great deal worse. The list of people injured include Mrs. Hoffman, leg broken; Mrs. Eicheroth, Sr., head injured; Thomas Donahue, head cut and bruised; Mrs. Henry Steigle, arm crushed; Mrs. Levi Hussy, arm cut; D. B. Greenwald, cut badly by flying glass; Andrew Duncan, head cut.

Among the property losses surrounding the mills were the house, grocery and saloon of A. Neuber and the grocery of John Kraus, also the houses of Andrew Duncan and Michael O'Neil, whose occupants escaped with slight injuries. The mill was the property of Kehler Bros. of St. Louis. The capacity was 2,500 barrels of flour daily. It employed 150 men. General Manager A. L. Smith stated that the amount of insurance carried on the mill, elevator and contents was about $350,000, while the loss will run up into almost a million dollars.

L. A. Smith, the general manager, places the loss at $500,000, while the insurance is about $230,000, placed in some twenty or thirty companies. Other losses are: Adolph Newber, store and residence, and barns partially demolished, $3,000, insured in part; Mrs. V. Hoffman, three tenement houses; Charles Baker, Peter Oller and Mrs. O'Neill are left practically homeless. John Crass' store, immediately east of the mills, was almost entirely demolished. Upon State, Rider and Kisham streets, the principal thoroughfares of the city, nearly every plate glass front was destroyed by the concussion. The damage to the Litchfield, a new hotel, is not far from $10,000, while the New York store sustained a heavy loss. More than 100 residences were damaged to greater or less extent, and to-night it is impossible to arrive at anything like an accurate estimate of the total damages inflicted.

Last Act in the Tragedy.

Milwaukee, March 22.—The funeral of Miss Alma Nunnemacher and young Miller was held to-day at Forest Home cemetery, at 3 o'clock. The services were very simple, and took place at the grave. Father Keogh, of St. John's cathedral, officiated at her burial, and Rev. C. S. Lester, of St. Paul's Episcopal church, committed young Miller's body to the earth. The latter was buried in the family lot. Miss Nunnemacher's remains were interred in the Nunnemacher lot. The bereaved parents and a little knot of relatives alone witnesses this last act in the tragedy.

Found Dead in Bed.

Grand Forks, N. D., Special, March 22.—Frank Demers, local agent of the Great Northern Express company, was found dead in bed to-day by his mother, who arrived this morning from St. Paul to visit him. Not finding him at the office she accompanied a friend to his room and found that death had just occurred from apoplexy. Deceased was a son of Capt. H. S. Demers, one of the prominent pioneers of the Red Wing valley, who has been for several years a patient at the state insane asylum. The remains were taken to St. Paul to-night and interment will take place there to-morrow.

A New Pythian Lodge.

Jamestown, N. D., Special, March 22.—Special trains from Fargo, New Rockford, and regular trains from other points brought in a large number of Knights of Pythias for the installation and organization of a lodge here the order is growing fast in the state, and is among the most popular of all societies. Grand Chancellor Dahl of Bismarck is present to institute the lodge, the various degrees being given by representatives of lodges from Fargo, Mandan, New Rockford and elsewhere.

Minnesota Inventors.

Washington, March 22.—Minnesota patents issued to-day: Oscar Daman, assignor to the Northwestern Stove works, Minneapolis, chill core for molding sockets for stoves; Rasmus Pederson, Dramman corn harvester; Alexander Whyte, St. Paul, apparatus for cleaning air-pumps of locomotives.

The Treasury Gold.

Washington, March 22—The ten days statement issued by the treasury department today gives the gold in the treasury as $106,575,000, a gain of $4,000,000 within the last ten days. Secretary Carlisle is advised that $500,000 in gold was taken from the treasury in New York yesterday for shipment to Europe. This is the first gold shipment since March 11.

Snow in South Dakota.

Huron, S. D., Special, March 22.—A lively snowstorm is in progress here. It comes from the northeast with no indications of abatement before morning. The snow is heavy with water and will put the ground in fine condition for seeding.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Special, March 22.—A storm has put in an appearance and the air is full of snow. The weather is warm.

A Missing Boy.

Faribault, Minn., Special, March 22.—Willie Voss, twelve years of age, has been missing from his home for about a week. He was seen at Charles City, Iowa, his former home, and was sent back by relatives, but has not been seen since.

Whalebacks on the Gulf.

Galveston, Tex., Special—Henry C. Rouse, president of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and Capt. Alexander McDougall of West Superior, general manager of the American Steel Barge company and inventor of the whaleback steamer, are here, accompanied by T. C. Purdy, second vice president; Col. Williams, chief engineer, and J. W. Maxwell, division superintendent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, investigating Corpus Christi, Arkansas Pass and Velasco harbors, taking soundings and examining their advantages as ports, with the object of ascertaining their relative value for the operation of the whaleback steamers in both coastwise and foreign trade and so locate a gulf terminal for the road, which is now seeking one.

A Playright Wants a Divorce.

Yankton, S. D. Special—Herbert Hall Winslow, the dramatist, is now suing for separation from his wife, Daisy Edna Winslow. The trial of the case began in the circuit court here to-day. Mr. Winslow took the stand in his own behalf as the first witness and detailed the story of the summer of 1890, when he went with his wife to live at Asbury Park, a summer resort. In June of that year, he says, she exhibited a violent temper and a most versatile disposition and was little less than a shrew, and before the case is finished he will tell how she attempted his life with a pair of scissors, and how she flew into a passion when there was no earthly cause for it. On Oct. 5, 1890, he alleges, she deserted him when they returned from Asbury Park. He provided a home for her at his father's house, but she refused to go there and live. She defends herself by swearing that in the subsequent months he condoned her offenses by calling upon her at her father's house and passing the night there.

Must Answer for Contempt.

St. Paul, Minn., Special Telegram—The officials of the legislature, Messrs. Swout, Wells and Shaefer, against whom a replevin was issued at the instance of J. J. Rhodes in his desire to recover his tell tale books and papers, will appear before Judge Egan this morning in answer to proceedings requiring them to show cause why they should not be fined for contempt of court. The summons is based on their refusal to obey the replevin and turn over the books to the sheriff. Attorney General Childs will be assisted by Judge Flandrau in conducting the case for the defense.

KAIULANI'S FAREWELL.

The Princess Will Sail for England.

New York, March 22.—Princess Victoria Kaiulani has promulgated her farewell address to the American people. It reads as follows:

"To the American People—Before leaving this land I want to thank all those whose kindness made my visit such a happy one. Not only the hundreds of hands that I have clasped, nor the kind smiles I have seen, but the written words of sympathy that have been sent to me from so many homes have made me feel that whatever happens to me I shall never be a stranger to you again. It was to the American people I spoke, and they heard me, as I knew they would, and I now ask God to bless you for it, from the beautiful home where your fair first lady reigns to the dear crippled boy who sent me his loving letter and prayer. KAIULANI."

The princess will sail for England to-morrow.

San Francisco, March 22.—Just before sailing for Hawaii yesterday Commissioner Blount had this to say regarding the object of his trip:

"The public seems to have the idea that I am loaded to the guards with instructions, whereas the plain truth is that I have received practically no instructions from President Cleveland or any one else. My mission is to investigate the whole question of annexation; to determine the sentiment of foreigners as well as natives, and to conclude as far as possible from the facts whether it would be advantageous to this country to annex the islands. My mind is free from any prejudice, and I am prepared to give an impartial hearing to all sides."

When told the voyage would probably take eight days, he smiled and said dryly: "Its an important question whether we want any territory which it takes a steamer more than a week to reach. That is mighty far away in my estimation."

Frauds in Germany.

Berlin, March 22.—Rector Ahlwardt, in a rabidly anti-semitic speech in the reichstag to-day, declared that he had eleven documents which showed conclusively that while Prince Bismarck was chancellor, fraudulent contracts had been made repeatedly with Jewish financiers. Vast amounts had been transferred dishonestly by means of these contracts from the coffers of the state to the pockets of Jewish speculators. These statements were made by Ahlwardt amid growing confusion among the Radicals, National Liberals and social Democrats. He was interrupted to calls for names, but he did not give them. After the president had quieted the house Ahlwardt said that the deputies were not obliged to depend upon his word for proof that these frauds had existed, as the documentary evidence was above impeachment. Had the losses of the state through the contracts been trivial, the matter might better have been allowed to pass unnoticed; but the truth was that, through its relations with the Jews, the government had lost hundreds of millions. The documents proving this were signed by men of national reputation. Several of these men were now ministers. One of them was Dr. Johannes Miquel, Prussian minister of finance. Prolonged uproar followed this statement. Deputies shouted that Ahlwardt should produce his documents, as his word had been proved to be worthless, and the debate closed with his being directed to submit the documents to the reichstag tomorrow.

To Negotiate a Loan.

New York, Mch. 22.—It was reported last night from an authoritative source that J. Pierpont Morgan, who sails on the Majestic to-morrow, goes on an important mission for the government. It is stated that he has been authorized to negotiate a loan of $50,000,000 in gold. The report is apparently well founded. Mr. Morgan was in Washington last week and held a long conference with Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle. Mr. Morgan's friends say that only the most important business would take him out of the country at this time. Several weeks ago there was some talk of the treasury department issuing $50,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds. That was before the administration changed hands. It was reported at that time that Mr. Morgan offered to negotiate the whole issue for Secretary Foster. It was understood that Mr. Morgan had several conferences with Secretary Foster on the subject.

Little Rhody's Nominees.

Providence, R. I., March 22.—At the Republican state convention to-day D. Russell Brown of Providence was unanimously renominated for governor, and Edwin R. Allen of Hopkinton for lieutenant governor. For secretary of state, Charles H. Bennett, Providence; attorney general, Edward C. Dubois, East Providence; general treasurer, Samuel Clark.

An Ex-Treasury Official Divorced.

Champaign, Ill., March 22.—Judge Wright heard the divorce case of Susan C. Day vs. William A. Day in the Champaign county circuit court. Day was formerly a prominent lawyer and mayor of this city and during the first Cleveland administration was the second auditor of the treasury, receiving the appointment on account of his effective political work in Illinois. Mrs. Day, according to the evidence of herself and servants of the Day household in Washington, was the victim of brutal attacks on the part of her husband, who on his advent in Washington political circles, it was alleged, started in on a life of reckless dissipation. Mrs. Day was granted a decree of divorce.

Kansas Bribery Investigation.

Topeka, Kan., March 22.—In the course of the bribery investigation by the senate committee to-day James F. Legate testified to having visited Kansas City to make a deal for a daily paper, and while there he ascertained that the whisky men and gamblers, for the past two years, so they claimed, had been compelled to contribute $10,000 a year to the Republican party of Kansas. He also told in detail how Pete Kline, a Kansas City gambler, gave him $1,500, and that he, Legate, used it in the senatorial campaign. In legate's judgment it cost the railroads $3,000 to get a certain four members to agree to vote for Douglass in the organization of the legislature.

A Fire Bug Confesses.

Indianapolis, March 22.—Eva Wendling, sent to the Women's Reformatory a year ago for a petty offense, was to-day arrested on a grand jury warrant charging her with setting fire to the institution some months ago. The indictment was based mainly upon her own testimony, she having confessed to Supt. Keeley. The fire cost the state about $75,000. The girl is but seventeen years old and is the daughter of respectable parents living at Duluth, Minn.

Moscow's Mayor Shot.

Moscow, March 22.—A man named Arianoff entered the council chamber to-night, and, calling Mayor Alexejeff into the reception room, shot the mayor through the stomach, inflicting a mortal wound. The assassin was arrested. Whether he is a nihilist or shot the mayor merely to avenge a private grievance is not known. It is believed that he had a political motive, as the police in searching him found in his shoe a slip of paper on which is written, "The lot has fallen upon you."

Less Exacting.

Washington, March 22.—Secretary Carlisle has issued a circular in regard to the importation of animals for breeding purposes which modifies the existing regulations by making them in some respects less strong.

Discharged.

Shell Lake, Wis., Special, March 22.—In the circuit court to-day J. H. Sullivan and L. A. Scidmore of Spooner and George R. Cole of West Superior were discharged on a charge of gambling, owing to a defect in the papers. The case attracted considerable attention owing to the prominence of the defendants.

Struck It Rich.

Great Falls, Mont., March 22.—A rich strike in the Maginnis mine, ninty miles east of Great Falls, is reported. A fifteen-struck. A conservative estimate places the value at one million dollars. W. H. Burgess, President Harks and Cashier Wilt, of the Merchants National bank, are the owners.

Across the Continent.

Montreal, Special—Another important railroad deal is on the tapis. A bill is before the dominion parliament to incorporate the Atlantic & Pacific, amalgamating the Bai des Chaleurs, the Great Eastern, Montreal & Sorel, Montreal Bridge company, Ottawa Valley Railway company, Pontiac & Pacific railway and the Ontario & Pacific Railway company into one huge company, with a capital of $10,000,000. The bill also empowers the company to construct a railway line from Gaspee to St. Mary's Algoma. Power is also desired to connect with a line of railway in Michigan, which gives color to the report that this scheme is backed by the Northern Pacific and is really destined to be a transcontinental line, with numerous ramifications. The bill has been reported in committee and will now pass the house.

A New York Failure.

New York, March 18.—William Schwab, Adolph Schwab and Gustave Schwab, composing the firm of William Schwab & Sons, album dealers, to-day allowed judgment to be taken against them for $42,140 in favor of Henry Sollick, for money loaned on notes. Siegfried Westheim, the pulp importer who failed March 1, is credited with causing the failure. Ira A. Bambury, attorney for Messrs. Schwab, said to-day that they had indorsed Westheim's paper for $165,000. The total liabilities of the Messrs. Schwab, including the above paper, are about $226,000.

Swindlers on Trial.

London, Special—James Henry Granville Wright, William Hobbs and George Newman were to-day on trial for frauds in connection with the Liberator Building society. The accused pleaded not guilty. The charges against the defendants are numerous and complicated, and include the obtaining of advances by false representations as to the purchase price of property, the enlargement of pay rolls beyond the actual amounts paid, and various other swindles whereby the Liberator society is alleged to have been defrauded of large sums of money.

Squire Abingdon Is Dying.

Buffalo, N. Y. Special—Charley Mitchel and Jim Hall arrived here to-night. Mitchell, on his arrival, was handed a telegram from Squire Abingdon's valet which read: "Mr. Abingdon is surely dying. Three physicians are at a consultation over him. You had better come immediately."

Mitchell said that Abingdon was subject to asthmatic attacks, and that on the night of the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight he caught cold, which resulted in the present attack.

Since the Cape diamond fields were discovered in 1867, 50,000,900 carats of stones, valued at $350,000,000, have been exported. These would load up two big coal trains.

In England toads are valued as destroyers of insects and are offered for sale at a shilling apiece, it is said, in the London markets, being bought by market gardeners.

Nineteen senators use but five letters each in spelling their names. The list begins with Allen and ends with White. Nine of the names are of two syllables, and ten of but one syllable each.

A tax of 10 francs a year is to be levied on pianos in France, those used by professional players being exempted. The measure imposing the tax passed the chamber by a vote of 307 to 145.

The admission of seven ladies to fellowship in the Royal Geographical society has stirred up a big fuss, and the other fellows, which is to say the masculine ones, threaten to contest the action legally.

George Erskine, a lost boy about fifteen years of age, has just been discovered by his mother working in the coal mines at Shenandoah, Pa. He ran away from Girard college, Philadelphia, about two years ago.

The severe cold and deep snows in the Northwest have caused many wild animals to venture near the settlements in search of food. A mountain lion, measuring 7 feet and 11 inches in length, was killed recently near Orting, Wash.

There are now nearly 200 women practicing dentistry in the United States. Although it is about thirty years since the first woman began practice in this profession, it is only within the last ten years that the number entering the profession has become considerable.

While William Parker, a resident of Laurel, Del., was dredging for oysters the other day, he caught an old stove which had been on the bottom so that mud had collected, and to this oysters were attached, the oven being full of bivalves.

President Harrison placed four jurists on the supreme bench during his administration. This record has been beaten twice only—Washington named all the members of the first court and then nominated four chief justices, and Lincoln chose five. Grant, in his two terms, named four.

In Palestine seedtime and harvest occur to-day precisely as they did according to records supposed to be thirty-three centuries old. During thousands of years in China there has been no change in the character of their cultivated plants, in the dates of breeding of silk worms or of the migration of birds.

A gentleman of Downderry, Cornwall, who thrashed a man for annoying some lady bathers was fined $50 by the local court, but the ladies of the neighborhood at once collected money among themselves and presented him a gold scarf-pin set with diamonds and a check for $150.

Capt. J. B. Sawyer, who is reputed to be the oldest living locomotive engineer in this country, was married to Mrs. Jennie Wagenhouse on board a train on the Texas & Pacific railroad the other day. Mr. Sawyer is eighty years old and his wife is about thirty-five years of age.

Statistics show that the law of chances governs in the vast majority of cases the ages at which men marry, who are engaged in certain occupations. Workmen and artisans take unto themselves wives at an earlier age than those who vocations are of a more intellectual kind.

One curious effect of the recent cold snap was that the traffic in tutti-frutti and chocolate tablets by means of automatic salesmen was seriously interrupted. Persons who attempted to secure chewing gum or chocolate by putting a "penny" in the slot found that the coin wouldn't fit. The cold had shrunk the iron top.

Certain ladies charged with the duty of obtaining data for a study of young humanity, now send to new mothers little blank books provided with questions as to when the baby first exhibited the sense of hearing, when he first took note of light, what were his earliest signs of distress and many more such. The questions are designed to furnish hints for an investigation extending over the first four years of the child's life. In time all the books will be collected and sent to Germany as aids to the persons who are one day to announce the results of an elaborate study of mental developments during infancy and early childhood.

Novelties of Crime.

A dentist's showcase was recently smashed by a thief, who carried off a quantity of false teeth. It was placed near the front door to attract notice, and the question naturally occurs, What can the thief do with his booty?

Another curious feature in crime is found in Henry Villard's butler, who had been for several months stealing the silver, and yet was only recently detected. He stole only that which could the most easily be spared, and thus the loss was not noticed until at last he made a final haul, intending to abscond, but was caught.

It may be added that the pillage by servants in New York is really frightful. Many of this class, indeed, hire out for this purpose, only remain in a family long enough to make a sufficient swoop, and then disappear with the plunder. Nurses also steal habitually, and a number of this class is now under arrest for robbing their patients. Larceny, indeed, permeates society to such an extent that bolts and bars are of but little avail, for it is not the outside, but the inside thief that is to be feared.—Yonkers Statesman.

THE NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

All Important Occurrences of the Past Week, Boiled Down and Arranged for Rapid Reading.

North Dakota.

Ole O. Mydahl, the oldest man in Cass county, died recently at the age of over ninety-eight years.

All the bills which mysteriously disappeared in the North Dakota legislature are accounted for but one—a railroad bill, the most important of all.

J. F. Jaberg & Co.'s store at Sanborn, was burglarized recently and $300 worth of guns, revolvers and cutlery stolen.

T. W. Griffin, who was sued by the government in the United States court at Bismarck on a hay contract, won a verdict. Some of Griffin's hay was rejected, but it was afterwards accepted when tendered by another man.

Gov. Shortridge has appointed as a commission to compile the laws, Burk Corbett of Grand Forks, C. F. Amyden of Fargo and George W. Nettleton of Bismarck. All are lawyers of good standing, Newton being at the head of the bar of the Sixth district.

Frank Cockburn, a butcher, had about seventy hogs penned a mile west of Devils Lake. He missed a hog now and then, but couldn't account for it. Recently he learned that a man named McColleff sold nine of the hogs to Fred Fox, a butcher, got the cash and skipped East. Nine other hogs are missing.

The state agricultural board refuses to recognize the three new members of the board. During the legislative session the governor nominated three members, but the senate rejected them. After the adjournment Gov. Shortridge appointed the men he had nominated, and now the board rejects them as holding illegal certificates.

Among the appointments failing of confirmation by the senate was that of Kemper Peabody to be public examiner. The governor has issued his commission; he succeeds R. E. Wallace. Mrs. Bartholomew was to-day appointed by the governor or state agent for the better enforcement of the law to prevent cruelty to animals.

The passage of the bill appropriating $3,000 for a starch bounty assures the establishment of a starch factory at Grand Forks. The plant will be erected and in operation in time for handling this season's potato crop. Resident stock subscriptions are nearly completed, with the balance in sight. The plant will have a daily capacity of manufacturing 18,000 pounds of starch.

Iowa.

Nearly half the little town of Polk was burned by incendiaries, including the Northwestern's depot and large elevators.

Edward Kildriff, aged twenty-eight, was found dead at his own gate at Clinton after having been out riding till midnight with a friend. A murder theory is held by some to explain the mystery.

Lansing Nichols, editor of the Waucoma Sentinel, came to West Union recently and eloped with Anna Wilber, the daughter of respectable parents. They took a freight train for Cedar Rapids.

Charles Penniwell, a harmless inmate of the insane asylum, escaped and walked about five miles. He confiscated a farmer's team and wagon and was not heard from again until captured by Sheriff Higee near Dumont.

John Jaster, a man who had a life position with the railway company at Des Moines on account of losing a leg a number of years ago, cut his throat from ear to ear last night. He had accumulated considerable property.

A north-bound freight on the Iowa and Minnesota division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul was wrecked near Otranto. The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails. The engineer, George Hazen, jumped, but was crushed under the engine and killed. The engine and several cars were destroyed.

W. B. Miller, living near Manchester, was badly injured while trying to break up a large rock. He poured a quantity of powder into a hole in it and set it on fire with a match which he held in his hand. One leg was broken in three places, one eye was nearly destroyed and his face and hands scorched and blackened.

The pressure of rising water in the Mississippi river caused the levee, which protects the lands of the Illinois bottoms in Lima lake district opposite Canton, Mo., to break, and the lands are being overflowed. The break occurred near the flood gates where Lima lake drains into the river. The damage will be heavy. Men are at work trying to stop the break.

The grand jury of Franklin county has returned an indictment against William Darrow for forgery. At present Darrow is serving out a two years' sentence at Aramosa for robbery, but as soon as he is released he will be tried on the above indictment. A year ago Darrow was tried by the Franklin county courts for the murder of Peter Larson. The principal evidence against the defendant was a note he held against Larson for all his personal effects. It was proven in the course of the trial that Darrow had forged Larson's name to this note and it would have doubtless led to the conviction of the former for murder had the body of Larson been found, but it was not and has not to this day. As it is there are enough charges against him to keep him a long time in the penitentiary.

MINNESOTA LAWMAKERS

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE DAY BY DAY.

Routine Report of the Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature During the Past Week.

MONDAY, MARCH 13.

Senate.

The only bill introduced to-day was one by Senator Craven to prevent fraudulent sales of goods by itinerant venders and to provide for licensing the same.

The senate then went into committee of the whole and spent the greater part of the day on general orders.

House.

The entire day was given over to the discussion of new bills in committee of the whole.

TUESDAY, MARCH 14.

Senate.

The following bills were introduced: To secure an equitable division of the money received from the tax on gross earnings of railroads; to provide for municipal elections in cities of less than 3,000 inhabitants; to prevent a contractor from assigning his interest in a contract without the consent of his sureties; to amend section 8, chapter 1, General Laws of 1878, relating to taxes; to amend section 59, chapter 64, General Laws of 1878, relating to terms of district court in Anoka county; regulating the use of highways by certain vehicles; to amend chapter 145, General Laws of 1885, relating to incorporation of villages; to allow the city of Minneapolis to issue bonds for $75,000 for a city hospital; to amend section 7, chapter 208, General Laws of 1887.

When the order of third reading was reached Senator Leavitt's bill to prevent champerty was first on the list, and was voted down by a vote of 15 to 20. S. F. 45, committee on judiciary's bill relating to suits against receivers, was passed by a vote of 33 to 1.

S. F. 451, committee on judiciary, allowing surety companies to become obligors on official bonds, was passed—37 to 0.

A good many bills on the calendar were in the hands of the engrossing committee and could not be acted upon.

Senator McHale's bill continuing in the judges of the district court official trust imposed upon their predecessors met with no objection, and was passed.

House.

The following bills were introduced: To fix the maximum fare for passengers on mixed trains at 2 cents per mile; to provide for municipal courts in villages of 1,000; to provide for the registry of paupers, insane and feeble-minded persons; to provide for municipal elections in villages of less than 3,000 inhabitants organized under special charters; to enable honorably discharged soldiers to carry on shows without paying license; to establish a district court of appeals in Minnesota; relating to appeals to the supreme court.

Senator Davis' bill appropriating $38,-000 to complete the new wing at the Fergus Falls asylum. Passed.

Senator Kelly's bill increasing the bounty for killing wolves. Passed.

Senator Keller's bill legalizing the action of the reformatory board in paying interest on money borrowed to construct cells. Lost.

Senator Comstock's bill relating to the incorporation of villages. Passed.

Senator Stevens' bill relating to the vacation of streets and alleys. Passed.

Senator Crandall's bill compelling railroad companies to post notices of delayed trains. Lost.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15.

Senate.

The following bills were introduced: To authorize the city of Minneapolis to issue $500,000 bonds to build a bridge across the Mississippi river at Sixth avenue south; to amend the act governing the park board of Minneapolis; to provide for an equitable adjustment of prices in selling grain by grade; to authorize cities of the state to aid in the construction of railroad and wagon bridges.

A petition was received from John J. Rhodes, manager of the Minnesota bureau of coal statistics, praying that his books, which had been seized by the coal combine investigating committee, be returned to him. The petition was referred to the coal combine committee. The senate then went into committee of the whole to consider the Markham bill.

House.

By all odds the most important petition that has come before the house this session was one from John J. Rhodes, manager of the Minnesota bureau of coal statistics, setting forth the circumstances connected with the seizure of his books and asking that they be returned to him. On motion of Mr. Walsh the petition was referred to the coal investigating committee.

The house might as well have been on general orders, for the entire morning session, with the exception of a very few moments, was occupied in debate. The first discussion took place over the disposition of the majority and minority reports of the logs and lumber committee on the Wyman bill to change the system of scaling and make the office of surveyor general a salaried position instead of paying him fees. The majority of the committee favored the indefinite postponement of the bill, and the minority reported a substitute bill which makes the surplus fees of the office payable into the state treasury instead of refunding them to the men who paid them in. The motion to indefinitely postpone both of them was a tie—47 to 47.

The capitol bill was under discussion and consumed the rest of the day.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16.

Senate.

There was but one bill to be introduced:

By Senator Crandall—To provide for a state board of immigration and appropriating money therefor.

Senator Dedon secured the passage of S. F. 233, a bill to appropriate money for the selection of swamp lands for state institutions.

The finance committee reported back the house bill appropriating $15,000 for a monument to the Second Minnesota regiment and Second battery, with an amendment striking out the name of W.A. Spalding from the list of commissioners and inserting the name of Maj. W. A. Hotchkiss, who commanded the battery. In the debate which followed it appeared that the name of Maj. Hotchkiss had been in the original draft of the bill, but owing to the fact that one of the house members was unfriendly to him his name was stricken out. The senate not only put his name in the bill again, but passed the bill under suspension of the rules. Senator Sanborn and Senator Donnelly paid high compliments to Maj. Hotchkiss as a brave soldier and one deserving of more than this slight recognition.

House.

Mr. Greer moved that H. F. No. 170, which is No. 180 on general orders, be given the place of H. F. No. 616, which is No. 32 on general orders. H. F. No. 170 is Mr. Wacek's bill providing for a commissioner to investigate the Torrens and other systems of land transfer, while 616 is to provide for the inspection of pressed meats. The motion prevailed.

Mr. Abbott sent up a resolution asking that H. F. 674, a bill to tax the gross earnings of express companies, be recalled from the judiciary and placed at the head of general orders for Friday. The motion went over under notice of debate by Mr. Greer. The clerk had started to read the bill when Mr. Fletcher threatened to create a sensation by asking how the bill came to be in the possession of the house. Mr. Abbott's explanation was cut short by the notice of debate.

Mr. Walsh then introduced the resolution upholding the coal combine committee in its retention of J. J. Rhodes' books. The resolution was passed.

Mr. Anderson introduced a concurrent resolution inquiring why the lands of the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, acquired while the road was known as the Lake Superior & Mississippi road, and afterward transferred to the present company, have not been on the tax list for the last fifteen years, as the United States district court decided they should have been in 1877, and also why they should not now be placed on the tax list.

FRIDAY MARCH 17.

Senate.

The senate met this morning with no special business to confront it, and with nothing to anticipate from the coal combine.

The following bills were introduced: To regulate fishing in the waters of Lake Superior and other waters forming part of the international boundary line. To cede civil jurisdiction to the State of North Dakota over an elevator site at Duluth or West Duluth. Relating to the establishment and care of cemeteries.

Senator Stevens moved that the rules be suspended and that H. F. 608, the bill designing to tax sleeping cars, be given its second and third reading and be placed on its final passage. Senator Morse raised an objection to such speedy action, and after the bill had had its third reading it was referred to the judiciary committee. The same action was taken with reference to H. F. 316, another bill on the same subject.

Senator Day's fish and game law was carried on its third reading by a vote of 38 to 11.

Senator Donnelly's bill putting farmers' mutual insurance companies under the control of the state insurance commissioner was also passed, the vote being 41 to 0.

Senator Lienau's bill allowing free employment agencies to be established in cities of more than 30,000 inhabitants was indorsed, 39 to 0.

Senator Dean's corrupt practice act met with a little opposition. Senator Hompe thought it was a useless piece of legislation. Senator Donnelly thought it was a step in the right direction.

The bill was defeated by the lack of one vote. It received 27 votes to 13.

House.

The house committee on legislative expenses this morning recommended that $68.75 be allowed for expenses of the members of the committee which investigated the charges of whipping at St. Cloud. Adopted.

A bill for $3.90 due a St. Paul firm for repairing locks in the hall was also paid.

Resolutions calling for an additional clerk for the appropriation committee a watchman and an assistant file clerk were recommended for indefinite postponement.

Mr. Cairn's resolution to pay Miss Cora Wing, stenographer for the charter commission, until March 19, was recommended to pass. Adopted.

Mr. F. M. Wilson's resolution to pay the cloak room and gallery keepers of the house the same salaries as the senate paid from the beginning of the session was recommended for indefinite postponement.

The committee on legislative expenses recommended the indefinite postponement of the resolution to reimburse R. C. Hinrichs, R. C. Talboys, R. A. Walsh, Dr. Williams and D. M. Sullivan for expenses incurred in the contests for their seats in the house, and recommended the passage of a substitute allowing the successful contestants the following sums: R. A. Walsh, $203.25; R. C. Hinrichs, $280; Dr. Williams, $125, and D. M. Sullivan, $208.95. Mr. Talboys' bill was disallowed altogether.

Dr. Williams declined to accept the sum awarded him and said if the house did not see fit to allow him the whole sum he had nothing to say.

Mr. Young said he did not believe any of the accounts should be allowed any more than the house should pay the campaign expenses of the members.

Mr. Sullivan said the amount allowed him by the committee was wholly out of proportion to the actual expenses incurred, and he declined to accept the sum tendered.

Mr. Walsh said he might be compelled to accept the amount tendered him, but he was strongly disinclined to do so.

Mr. Cairns, chairman of the committee on elections, stated that in many cases the amount asked for in the original resolutions did not cover the actual expenses of the members.

SATURDAY, MARCH 18.

Senate.

Two communications from labor organizations of Minneapolis protesting against any change of the special legislation amendment to the constitution, and touching on a number of other topics were received. Senator Probstfield introduced the only bill of the day:

S. F. 596, by Senator Probstfield—To amend section 29, chapter 81, General Laws of 1887, relating to license.

The capitol bill came in from the house, was ordered printed as amended and referred to the committee on public buildings which is expected to report it back on Monday to be submitted for the senate bill now on general orders. On motion of Senator J. D. Smith the house was requested to return H. F. 467, the homeless children's bill, passed on Friday. The motion was made, some of the members claiming to have voted for it under a misapprehension.

The senate then went into committee of the whole and several measures were acted upon.

House.

The committee on taxes reported a substitute for Mr. Boggs' bill providing for a pro rata distribution of the tax on gross earnings of railroads among the counties in which railroad lands are situated, the substitute providing for each county receiving 3 cents per acre for all railroad lands in their boundaries.

The following bills were introduced:

A bill to amend the General Laws of 1889 relating to publication of probate notices; judiciary. A bill to amend the General Laws of 1887 relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors; judiciary. A bill to amend the General Laws of 1878 relating to the descriptions of land for assessment purposes; judiciary. A bill relating to the platting of land in Big Stone county; judiciary.

Will Get Their Seats.

Washington, March 20.—The senate committee on privileges and elections held a meeting this afternoon in regard to the credentials of the appointed senators from the new states. Senator Allen, appointed by the governor of Washington, appeared before the committee and recited the facts connected with his appointment and gave the committee the benefit of his opinion as to the legal questions involved. Mr. Mantle of Montana, and Mr. Beckwith of Wyoming, also appeared and told the story of the contests that resulted in their appointments. After looking up the precedents the committee took a vote, which resulted as follows: For giving the senators their seats, Messrs. Turpie and Pugh, of the Democrats, and Messrs. Chandler, Hoar, and Higgins. Against seating, Messrs. Vance, Palmer and Gray, Democrats, and Mitchell, Republican. Mr. Chandler, in order to prevent a tie and secure a report to the senate, voted in favor of seating the senators, but reserved the right to take such action as he thought best on the floor of the senate. The majority report will be made by Mr. Vance and the minority by Mr. Hoar, early next week.

Increasing Imports.

Washington, Special, March 21.—The advance statement by the bureau of statistics on foreign commerce and immigration for February was issued to-day. The statement is not encouraging. It shows a large decrease in the value of exports during the month and a large increase in the value of imports of merchandise, and consequently a heavy balance against the United States. The value of the exports of merchandise during February was $59,943,888, and imports of merchandise $79,632,148, or an excess of imports and balance of trade against us of $19,688,262. The value of the exports was $26,694,251 less than they were one year ago, and about $15,000,000 less than two years ago. On the other hand, the imports are larger than for any February in previous years.

To Fight the Geary Law.

San Francisco, March 21—The Chinese Six Companies are preparing to make a stubborn fight on the Geary law when it comes before the supreme court, and have retained a number of the best constitutional lawyers in the country to present the case. Joseph H. Choate and Maxwell Evarts of New York and J. Hubby Ashton of Washington are the attorneys chosen to act with Thomas D. Riordan of this city, who expects to go East about the middle of April. Evarts will attend to the preliminaries in New York city, where the first arrest will be made on the day the law goes into effect. Choate and Ashton will present the case to the supreme court.

Dissolution Is Certain.

Berlin, March 21.—The Schlossiche Zeitung, organ of Chancellor Caprivi, states on authority that a dissolution will occur at the end of April unless the reichstag passes the army bill. The kaiser has the right to dissolve the reichstag after a vote by the bundesrath, and in that case new elections must take place within sixty days, and a new session must open within ninety days. The utterance of the Schlessiche Zeitung is regarded as an indication that Chancellor von Caprivi is beginning to despair of the passage of the army bill, and that both the kaiser and the chancellor regard the dissolution as the only recourse.

Receivers' Certificates.

Philadelphia, March 21.—It was definitely announced to-day by ex-Chief Justice Paxson, one of the receivers of the Reading, that an issue of receivers' certificates has been decided upon and that the papers would be filed before the close of the week. No information could be had as to how large an issue of certificates is in contemplation, but bankers estimated it at anywhere from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000. It is probable that the application for authority to issue receivers' certificates will be combated by the general mortgage bondholders' committee.

Deadly Explosion.

Rome, Iowa, March 21.—At a saw mill seven miles north of here, by the explosion of a boiler which was allowed to run out of water, four men were killed and several wounded. The dead are: John Adams, a saw tender; Eugene Gitlds, engineer; Townsley Boldojier, a workman; Esheman, a boy. The owner of the mill and Theodore Lillie are probably fatally injured. The explosion completely wrecked the mill.

Beatification for Joan of Arc.

Rome, March 21.—Pope Leo has informed the French bishops of his decision to crown his episcopal jubilee by the beatification of the French heroine, Joan of Arc, who was burned by the English as a sorceress and heretic May 30, 1431, and was formally pronounced to have been innocent in 1456. The pope has ordered the congregation of rites to expedite the preliminaries for the beatification.

DEATH IN AN EXPLOSION.

INCINERATION IS THE FATE OF A MILLWRIGHT.

He Falls a Victim to a Terrible Explosion That Wrecks a Flour Mill and Entails a Loss of Nearly a Million Dollars.

Burned to a Crisp.

Litchfield, Ill., March 21—An explosion resembling an earthquake and destroying nearly a million dollars' worth of property, occurred here this morning. The loss of a life and the injury of a number of people resulted from the catastrophe. Practically every business structure in Litchfield was wrecked, and scores of dwellings rendered uninhabitable. Early in the day an alarm of fire was turned in, and, upon investigation, it developed that the Litchfield "Planet" mills, located in the southwest part of the city, was in flames. Before the firemen arrived upon the scene the fire had gained such headway that for some time nothing could be done to check it, and it seemed as if the entire south part of the town would be consumed. The fire is supposed to have originated by a spark from a passing locomotive falling in one of the dust rooms. The hose and hook and ladder companies had hardly succeeded in getting their apparatus in working order when an explosion, appalling in its violence, was caused by the flames' sudden contact with pent-up mill dust. The explosion shook the earth over a singularly wide area, while the atmospheric concussion was felt as far as Decatur, a distance of fifty miles. The head millwright, John Carve of Waterloo, in making an effort to secure his tools from the blazing building, was stunned by the explosion, and, endeavoring to escape, was pinned against the smoke stack and burned to death. When found about three hours afterwards his legs were burned off at the hips, the right arm and left hand were entirely consumed, and his body burned to a crisp.

Three large elevators standing immediately across the Wabash track, west of the mill, containing some 250,000 bushels of wheat, was quickly in flames, and, together with its valuable contents, burned to the ground. Ten or twelve cars of wheat standing on the track were reduced to ashes. A large pile of debris about ten or fifteen feet high fell on the main track of the Wabash railroad, and, as a consequence, traffic on that road is badly impaired. The Western Union telegraph wires are also down, which makes matters a great deal worse. The list of people injured include Mrs. Hoffman, leg broken; Mrs. Eichelroth, Sr., head injured; Thomas Donahue, head cut and bruised; Mrs. Henry Steigle, arm crushed; Mrs. Levi Hussy, arm cut; D. B. Greenwald, cut badly by flying glass; Andrew Duncan, head cut.

Among the property losses surrounding the mills were the house, grocery and saloon of A. Neuber and the grocery of John Kraus, also the houses of Andrew Duncan and Michael O'Neil, whose occupants escaped with slight injuries. The mill was the property of Kehler Bros. of St. Louis. The capacity was 2,500 barrels of flour daily. It employed 150 men. General Manager A. L. Smith stated that the amount of insurance carried on the mill, elevator and contents was about $350,000, while the loss will run up into almost a million dollars.

L. A. Smith, the general manager, places the loss at $500,000, while the insurance is about $230,000, placed in some twenty or thirty companies. Other losses are: Adolph Newber, store and residence, and barns partially demolished, $3,000, insured in part; Mrs. V. Hoffman, three tenement houses; Charles Baker, Peter Oller and Mrs. O'Neill are left practically homeless. John Crass' store, immediately east of the mills, was almost entirely demolished. Upon State, Rider and Kisham streets, the principal thoroughfares of the city, nearly every plate glass front was destroyed by the concussion. The damage to the Litchfield, a new hotel, is not far from $10,000, while the New York store sustained a heavy loss. More than 100 residences were damaged to greater or less extent, and to-night it is impossible to arrive at anything like an accurate estimate of the total damages inflicted.

Last Act in the Tragedy.

Milwaukee, March 22.—The funeral of Miss Alma Nunnemacher and young Miller was held to-day at Forest Home cemetery, at 3 o'clock. The services were very simple, and took place at the grave. Father Keogh, of St. John's cathedral, officiated at her burial, and Rev. C. S. Lester, of St. Paul's Episcopal church, committed young Miller's body to the earth. The latter was buried in the family lot. Miss Nunnemacher's remains were interred in the Nunnemacher lot. The bereaved parents and a little knot of relatives alone witnesses this last act in the tragedy.

Found Dead in Bed.

Grand Forks, N. D., Special, March 22.—Frank Demers, local agent of the Great Northern Express company, was found dead in bed to-day by his mother, who arrived this morning from St. Paul to visit him. Not finding him at the office she accompanied a friend to his room and found that death had just occurred from apoplexy. Deceased was a son of Capt. H. S. Demers, one of the prominent pioneers of the Red Wing valley, who has been for several years a patient at the state insane asylum. The remains were taken to St. Paul to-night and interment will take place there to-morrow.

A New Pythian Lodge.

Jamestown, N. D., Special, March 22.—Special trains from Fargo, New Rockford, and regular trains from other points brought in a large number of Knights of Pythias for the installation and organization of a lodge here the order is growing fast in the state, and is among the most popular of all societies. Grand Chancellor Dahl of Bismarck is present to institute the lodge, the various degrees being given by representatives of lodges from Fargo, Mandan, New Rockford and elsewhere.

Minnesota Inventors.

Washington, March 22.—Minnesota patents issued to-day: Oscar Daman, assignor to the Northwestern Stove works, Minneapolis, chill core for molding sockets for stoves; Rasmus Pederson, Drammen corn harvester; Alexander Whyte, St. Paul, apparatus for cleaning air-pumps of locomotives.

The Treasury Gold.

Washington, March 22—The ten days statement issued by the treasury department today gives the gold in the treasury as $106,-575,000, a gain of $4,000,000 within the last ten days. Secretary Carlisle is advised that $500,000 in gold was taken from the treasury in New York yesterday for shipment to Europe. This is the first gold shipment since March 11.

Snow in South Dakota.

Huron, S. D., Special, March 22.—A lively snowstorm is in progress here. It comes from the northeast with no indications of abatement before morning. The snow is heavy with water and will put the ground in fine condition for seeding.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Special, March 22.—A storm has put in an appearance and the air is full of snow. The weather is warm.

A Missing Boy.

Faribault, Minn., Special, March 22.—Willie Voss, twelve years of age, has been missing from his home for about a week. He was seen at Charles City, Iowa, his former home, and was sent back by relatives, but has not been seen since.

Whalebacks on the Gulf.

Galveston, Tex., Special—Henry C. Rouse, president of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and Capt. Alexander McDougall of West Superior, general manager of the American Steel Barge company and inventor of the whaleback steamer, are here, accompanied by T. C. Purdy, second vice president; Col. Williams, chief engineer, and J. W. Maxwell, division superintendent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, investigating Corpus Christi, Arkansas Pass and Velasco harbors, taking soundings and examining their advantages as ports, with the object of ascertaining their relative value for the operation of the whaleback steamers in both coastwise and foreign trade and so locate a gulf terminal for the road, which is now seeking one.

A Playright Wants a Divorce.

Yankton, S. D. Special—Herbert Hall Winslow, the dramatist, is now suing for separation from his wife, Daisy Edna Winslow. The trial of the case began in the circuit court here to-day. Mr. Winslow took the stand in his own behalf as the first witness and detailed the story of the summer of 1890, when he went with his wife to live at Asbury Park, a summer resort. In June of that year, he says, she exhibited a violent temper and a most versatile disposition and was little less than a shrew, and before the case is finished he will tell how she attempted his life with a pair of scissors, and how she flew into a passion when there was no earthly cause for it. On Oct. 5, 1890, he alleges, she deserted him when they returned from Asbury Park. He provided a home for her at his father's house, but she refused to go there and live. She defends herself by swearing that in the subsequent months he condoned her offenses by calling upon her at her father's house and passing the night there.

Must Answer for Contempt.

St. Paul, Minn., Special Telegram—The officials of the legislature, Messrs. Swout, Wells and Shaefer, against whom a replevin was issued at the instance of J. J. Rhodes in his desire to recover his tell tale books and papers, will appear before Judge Egan this morning in answer to proceedings requiring them to show cause why they should not be fined for contempt of court. The summons is based on their refusal to obey the replevin and turn over the books to the sheriff. Attorney General Childs will be assisted by Judge Flandrau in conducting the case for the defense.

KAIULANI'S FAREWELL.

The Princess Will Sail for England.

New York, March 22.—Princess Victoria Kaiulani has promulgated her farewell address to the American people. It reads as follows:

"To the American People—Before leaving this land I want to thank all those whose kindness made my visit such a happy one. Not only the hundreds of hands that I have clasped, nor the kind smiles I have seen, but the written words of sympathy that have been sent to me from so many homes have made me feel that whatever happens to me I shall never be a stranger to you again. It was to the American people I spoke, and they heard me, as I knew they would, and I now ask God to bless you for it, from the beautiful home where your fair first lady reigns to the dear crippled boy who sent me his loving letter and prayer. KAIULANI."

The princess will sail for England to-morrow.

San Francisco, March 22.—Just before sailing for Hawaii yesterday Commissioner Blount had this to say regarding the object of his trip:

"The public seems to have the idea that I am loaded to the guards with instructions, whereas the plain truth is that I have received practically no instructions from President Cleveland or any one else. My mission is to investigate the whole question of annexation; to determine the sentiment of foreigners as well as natives, and to conclude as far as possible from the facts whether it would be advantageous to this country to annex the islands. My mind is free from any prejudice, and I am prepared to give an impartial hearing to all sides."

When told the voyage would probably take eight days, he smiled and said dryly: "Its an important question whether we want any territory which it takes a steamer more than a week to reach. That is mighty far away in my estimation."

Frauds in Germany.

Berlin, March 22.—Rector Ahlwardt, in a rabidly anti-semitic speech in the reichstag to-day, declared that he had eleven documents which showed conclusively that while Prince Bismarck was chancellor, fraudulent contracts had been made repeatedly with Jewish financiers. Vast amounts had been transferred dishonestly by means of these contracts from the coffers of the state to the pockets of Jewish speculators. These statements were made by Ahlwardt amid growing confusion among the Radicals, National Liberals and social Democrats. He was interrupted to calls for names, but he did not give them. After the president had quieted the house Ahlwardt said that the deputies were not obliged to depend upon his word for proof that these frauds had existed, as the documentary evidence was above impeachment. Had the losses of the state through the contracts been trivial, the matter might better have been allowed to pass unnoticed; but the truth was that, through its relations with the Jews, the government had lost hundreds of millions. The documents proving this were signed by men of national reputation. Several of these men were now ministers. One of them was Dr. Johannes Miquel, Prussian minister of finance. Prolonged uproar followed this statement. Deputies shouted that Ahlwardt should produce his documents, as his word had been proved to be worthless, and the debate closed with his being directed to submit the documents to the reichstag tomorrow.

To Negotiate a Loan.

New York, Mch. 22.—It was reported last night from an authoritative source that J. Pierpont Morgan, who sails on the Majestic to-morrow, goes on an important mission for the government. It is stated that he has been authorized to negotiate a loan of $50,000,000 in gold. The report is apparently well founded. Mr. Morgan was in Washington last week and held a long conference with Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle. Mr. Morgan's friends say that only the most important business would take him out of the country at this time. Several weeks ago there was some talk of the treasury department issuing $50,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds. That was before the administration changed hands. It was reported at that time that Mr. Morgan offered to negotiate the whole issue for Secretary Foster. It was understood that Mr. Morgan had several conferences with Secretary Foster on the subject.

Little Rhody's Nominees.

Providence, R. I., March 22.—At the eRpublican state convention to-day D. Russell Brown of Providence was unanimously renominated for governor, and Edwin R. Allen of Hopkinton for lieutenant governor. For secretary of state, Charles H. Bennett, Providence; attorney general, Edward C. Dubois, East Providence; general treasurer, Samuel Clark.

An Ex-Treasury Official Divorced.

Champaign, Ill., March 22.—Judge Wright heard the divorce case of Susan C. Day vs. William A. Day in the Champaign county circuit court. Day was formerly a prominent lawyer and mayor of this city and during the first Cleveland administration was the second auditor of the treasury, receiving the appointment on account of his effective political work in Illinois. Mrs. Day, according to the evidence of herself and servants of the Day household in Washington, was the victim of brutal attacks on the part of her husband, who on his advent in Washington political circles, it was alleged, started in on a life of reckless dissipation. Mrs. Day was granted a decree of divorce.

Kansas Bribery Investigation.

Topeka, Kan., March 22.—In the course of the bribery investigation by the senate committee to-day James F. Legate testified to having visited Kansas City to make a deal for a daily paper, and while there he ascertained that the whisky men and gamblers, for the past two years, so they claimed, had been compelled to contribute $10,000 a year to the Republican party of Kansas. He also told in detail how Pete Kline, a Kansas City gambler, gave him $1,500, and that he, Legate, used it in the senatorial campaign. In legate's judgment it cost the railroads $3,000 to get a certain four members to agree to vote for Douglass in the organization of the legislature.

A Fire Bug Confesses.

Indianapolis, March 22.—Eva Wendling, sent to the Women's Reformatory a year ago for a petty offense, was to-day arrested on a grand jury warrant charging her with setting fire to the institution some months ago. The indictment was based mainly upon her own testimony, she having confessed to Supt. Keeley. The fire cost the state about $75,000. The girl is but seventeen years old and is the daughter of respectable parents living at Duluth, Minn.

Moscow's Mayor Shot.

Moscow, March 22.—A man named Arlanoff entered the council chamber to-night, and, calling Mayor Alexejeff into the reception room, shot the mayor through the stomach, inflicting a mortal wound. The assassin was arrested. Whether he is a nihilist or shot the mayor merely to avenge a private grievance is not known. It is believed that he had a political motive, as the police in searching him found in his shoe a slip of paper on which is written, "The lot has fallen upon you."

Less Exacting.

Washington, March 22.—Secretary Carlisle has issued a circular in regard to the importation of animals for breeding purposes which modifies the existing regulations by making them in some respects less strong.

Discharged.

Shell Lake, Wis., Special, March 22.—In the circuit court to-day J. H. Sullivan and L. A. Scidmore of Spooner and George R. Cole of West Superior were discharged on a charge of gambling, owing to a defect in the papers. The case attracted considerable attention owing to the prominence of the defendants.

Struck It Rich.

Great Falls, Mont., March 22.—A rich strike in the Maginnis mine, ninty miles east of Great Falls, is reported. A fifteen-struck. A conservative estimate places the value at one million dollars. W. H. Burgess, President Hanks and Cashier Wilt, of the Merchants National bank, are the owners.

Across the Continent.

Montreal, Special—Another important railroad deal is on the tapis. A bill is before the dominion parliament to incorporate the Atlantic & Pacific, amalgamating the Bai des Chaleurs, the Great Eastern, Montreal & Sorel, Montreal Bridge company, Ottawa Valley Railway company, Pontiac & Pacific railway and the Ontario & Pacific Railway company into one huge company, with a capital of $10,000,000. The bill also empowers the company to construct a railway line from Gaspee to St. Mary's Algoma. Power is also desired to connect with a line of railway in Michigan, which gives color to the report that this scheme is backed by the Northern Pacific and is really destined to be a transcontinental line, with numerous ramifications. The bill has been reported in committee and will now pass the house.

A New York Failure.

New York, March 18.—William Schwab, Adolph Schwab and Gustave Sshwab, composing the firm of William Schwab & Sons, album dealers, to-day allowed judgment to be taken against them for $42,140 in favor of Henry Sollick, for money loaned on notes. Siegfried Westheim, the pulp importer who failed March 1, is credited with causing the failure. Ira A. Bambury, attorney for Messrs. Schwab, said to-day that they had indorsed Westheim's paper for $165,000. The total liabilities of the Messrs. Schwab, including the above paper, are about $226,-000.

Swindlers on Trial.

London, Special—James Henry Granville Wright, William Hobbs and George Newman were to-day on trial for frauds in connection with the Liberator Building society. The accused pleaded not guilty. The charges against the defendants are numerous and complicated, and include the obtaining of advances by false representations as to the purchase price of property, the enlargement of pay rolls beyond the actual amounts paid, and various other swindles whereby the Liberator society is alleged to have been defrauded of large sums of money.

Squire Abingdon Is Dying.

Buffalo, N. Y. Special—Charley Mitchell and Jim Hall arrived here to-night. Mitchell, on his arrival, was handed a telegram from Squire Abingdon's valet which read: "Mr. Abingdon is surely dying. Three physicians are at a consultation over him. You had better come immediately."

Mitchell said that Abingdon was subject to asthmatic attacks, and that on the night of the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight he caught cold, which resulted in the present attack.

The use of Ely's Cream Balm, a sure cure for Catarrh and Cold in head, is attended with no pain, inconvenience or dread, which can be said of no other remedy.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago.

Keeping Iron and Steel from Rusting

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A simple method of keeping iron and steel from rusting is to coat them with a solution of rubber in benzel made about the consistency of cream. It may be applied with a brush and easily rubbed off when desired. A coating of more use where the "tooth" imparted by rubber would be disadvantageous is prepared by dissolving two parts of crystals of chloride of iron, two of antimony chloride and one of tannin in four of water. Apply with a sponge or rag and allow to dry. As many coats can be given as are deemed necessary. When dry it is washed with water, again allowed to dry and polished with linseed oil. The antimony solution should be as neatly neutral as possible.

He Thanks God for Sagwa and Prays for its Success.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN., Aug. 15.

I deem it my duty to tender this my testimonial as an offer of gratitude for what "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa" has done for me. I came out of the army in the fall of '65, broken down by chronic dyspepsia in its worst form, and was also suffering enlargement of the heart. I consulted the best physicians, and visited institutions in the East, and one and all told me the same thing—I never could get well.

By suggestion of an old comrade I took "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa," and thank God for it. Sagwa has changed my life from misery and pain to one of health and gladness, and I can now eat anything without distress. My heart is all right and my friends are astonished.

The physician who knew of my case and heard of my cure said that a medicine that is capable of making such a cure, he not only endorses but cheerfully recommends to anyone.

If this testimonial comes under the notice of any soldier who is suffering, let him take the word of an old comrade—buy a bottle of Indian Sagwa at once, and may God prosper you with the success of this remedy is the grateful prayer of

THE STORY TELLER

MY TWO WIVES.

CHAPTER II.

One day my wife left a letter on the table of our sitting room. It was lying open, and I read it, and learned something which astonished me. The compromise had been agreed to by the relatives in consequence of a letter having been submitted to them, a letter the testator had written to Miss Ellis, and which she had only recently found. It was the letter which I had signed.

I taxed my wife with the deception she had practiced on me. I was furious, but she only laughed. I swore that I would make a clean breast of it.

Still she laughed.

"Nonsense," she said; "you committed the forgery, not I. And you are my husband. A husband cannot give evidence against his wife."

I was thunderstruck. She had married me to close my mouth.

"Still," I cried, "I can go to the lawyers on the other side. They will be able then to take some action."

Still she laughed. "You'll find yourself in a very awkward position if you do," she said.

I began to think the matter over. I saw she was right. I certainly should have some difficulty in making people believe that I forged the signature and married her directly she got the money without being in any way a party to the plot.

But I felt that I had been duped—made a catspaw. Then my long pent up anger broke forth and in a torrent of words I told the lady what I thought of her conduct.

She listened to me with a contemptuous smile on her cruel thin lips.

When I had exhausted myself she had her say.

Speaking calmly and deliberately, she informed me that she was by no means sorry I had discovered the truth. It would save any further deception on her part, and perhaps it was as well that we thoroughly understood each other.

She had no desire to claim my society any longer. In fact, she very much preferred to be her own mistress. No good would ever come of "scenes," and as we were not likely to become more friendly as time passed on, the best thing I could do was to go home again and leave her to manage her own affairs.

I quite agreed with her that henceforward there could be no common life for us, and that evening I packed my portmanteau and took my departure, and so ended my honeymoon.

I had asked for a week's holiday, and so I went back to my berth in the city, and left my wife and her £30,000 for good and all.

I was determined to be so far clear as this—that if anything ever did come to light it should be proved that I had no share of the spoil—that directly I found out the truth I left the woman undisputed mistress of her fortune and continued to earn my own living.

I saw my wife once after that. She wrote me to meet her in London. I kept the appointment and she proposed a compact. No one knew of our marriage. She would not bear my name and she would leave me free from all responsibility on her behalf.

I was quite agreeable, and so it was settled. But she insisted on a proper deed of separation in which I agreed not to molest her. I accepted the condition, we went to a solicitor's, the deed was drawn up and signed, and we parted outside the office. From that moment I believe she went back into the world under her maiden name, and I—well, I grew mad with myself. I grew careless, reckless, despondent, and I took to drink.

I didn't take to it all at once. I began, as many men do when sorrow and trouble come upon them, to hate being alone at night; and so, when the day's work was done, instead of going home, I loafed about the streets, and went into bar parlors and drank, not for drinking's sake, but to still the gnawing pain at my heart.

From taking a little now and then, I grew to take a good deal often. I acquired the taste for drink. The drink habit grew on me, and fastened its fatal coils about me. I tried at first to resist it, but the resistance was a feeble one, and after the first struggle I gave myself up body and soul to the great curse.

I didn't wait till evening now to dull my brain with alcohol. I drank spirits morning, noon and night. Whenever I could slip out of the office for a few minutes I went off and "had a drink."

It had become a necessity with me now. I had to drink to enable me to do my work, and then I did the work badly.

A year after my marriage I was dismissed from my situation, and I thought a change would do me good.

I felt it was my one chance of shaking off the fatal habit which was breaking down my health, and ruining me body and soul. With a desperate effort I managed, after a time, to wean myself from drink. I tried several times, but broke down, but at last I succeeded. Then I said to myself that I would see the world. My mother had just died, and the little capital that came to her from the wreck of my father's business was mine. It was only a few hundred pounds, but it was enough to take me to Australia, and so to Australia I went.

I obtained a situation over there in the name of William Smith. I dropped the Hengist, because in Australia it was in the way, and I didn't want it. After I had been there about two years I fell in love with a young lady, the daughter of the people who kept the house where I lodged. Then I began to feel the bitterness of my position. My love was returned. Then I did another mad, wicked thing. I never intended to go back to England again. My wife and I were separated for ever—dead to each other. She had taken her maiden name again, and so I married; married my sweet little Cora and I lived with her as happy as the conscience I could not entirely stifle would allow me to be.

It is difficult for a man who has not been placed in my position to understand how I could bring myself to act as I did.

To understand it you must take into consideration all the circumstances and remember that I had never had any love for the woman who had marred my life by making me her dupe. I had never known one moment of the happiness of married life with her, and I rebelled against the idea of growing old, robbed by her trickery of the solace of a loving woman's companionship.

My position was a desperate one—the step I took to remedy it was a desperate one. But I persuaded myself that I was another man, that the husband of Marion Ellis mad disappeared from the world and that the husband of Cora Williamson had nothing in common with him. And persuading myself thus, I refused any longer to be miserable, and determined to make the best of my life and let my terrible secret die if need be with me.

After my marriage I settled down, and my good star seemed to be in the ascendant. With a little capital Cora's father lent me I went into business, speculated and prospered, and at the end of another two years I was fairly well off.

We had a sweet little home, and I was supremely happy. Cora was a devoted wife, and from the first hour of our marriage we never had an angry word.

Sometimes in the silence of the night I would wake up and think of the other woman and the other life. But I never let the thought linger. I drove it away and at last brought myself almost to believe that the past was a dream—a nightmare—a something which was only the creation of my own imagination.

The good luck which had set in after my marriage with Cora continued, and at last a big successful coup made me the possessor of what might without exaggeration be called a fortune. At any rate I was placed beyond the necessity of work and had leisure to enjoy life and to devote myself to my wife's society and my own amusement.

Then there came upon me an intense longing to go over to England for a while—to see the old country once again. My wife was very anxious to go. It had been the dream of her life to see Europe.

Where was the danger. I was only Mr. William Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Smith could stay at any hotel without attracting attention to their names, and the other woman was hardly likely to meet us or even to know of Cora's existence. We were separated. She was Miss Ellis, a spinster, and if the worst came to the worst she couldn't betray me without the story of why I left her coming out, and that might be awkward for the £30,000.

She would have to account for taking her maiden name. She would have to inflict such an injury upon me by taking proceedings that she would be sure that I should not spare her in return.

She had told me at the time we separated that all she desired was to left free. Was she likely, even if by a remote chance she learned of my marriage, to sacrifice her freedom and proclaim herself my wife?

She had never loved me—there could be no jealousy. She had everything to gain by holding her tongue, everything to lose by makng me her enemy. Again my fatal habit of arranging matters to suit my own views came into play. I convinced myself that there was no earthly chance of Marion crossing my path or assuming a hostile attitude.

And so at last we sailed for England. In London we went to the Langham hotel. I showed my wife all the sights of the great city, and she was delighted.

One day I thought I should like to show her my mother's grave, so I took her to Highgate, where we had buried my mother beside my father in the family grave he had purchased years before the crash came.

I had some difficulty in finding the tomb, so I left my wife on the gravel path while I went wandering about.

I found it at last.

A feeling of sorrow came over me as I gazed on the spot where my parents had lain in the grave side by side so long while I had been far away in a strange land beyond the seas.

The tears came into my eyes, and the mist before them prevented my seeing very clearly at first.

I saw my father's name, and immediately under it my mother's.

Also of Jane,
Wife of the above
Who entered into her rest
August, 188—.

Poor mother! I made up my mind to come again to the cemetery before I left, and lay a wreath of immortelles upon her tomb.

It would be at least a sign of my having remembered her when I was far away.

I was just turnng away to go and bring my wife to the grave when I saw that there was a further inscription underneath my mother's. I looked at it for a moment, then I started back with a wild cry of astonishment.

Did my eyes deceive, was I the victim of some extraordinary illusion. No, there were the big black letters upon the marble slab before me.

Also of
William Hengist Smith,
Son of the above,
Who Died September the —, 188—,
Aged 24,
And is here interred.

Son of the above. I was their only son. My name was William Hengist Smith.

I was looking at my own tomb. I was dead and buried, and my body lay beneath that marble slab in Highgate cemetery.

As soon as I had recovered from the shock which the sight of my own name upon our family grave at Highgate caused me, my first thought was for Cora.

She was waiting for me on the gravel path some little distance away. I determined to go to her at once, and make some excuse for not showing her my mother's grave.

My brain was in a whirl. Even after the first shock of horror and surprise had passed away I could hardly realize that I was not dreaming.

But there before me was the inscription. It could not mean any one else but myself. I was the only child of William and Jane Smith, and my name was William Hengist Smith.

At first I imagined that some story of my death had reached England, and some one had placed my name upon the tombstone as a memorial. But the words, "and is here interred," made that theory untenable. I was alive, alive and looking at the place here my lifeless body was supposed to be resting.

Some one, therefore, must have been buried who was supposed to be me.

But who had supposed such a thing, and who was the dead man who had my name upon his coffin lid?

With my mind full of this strange and awful mystery I mechanically made my way through the tombs until I came to the place where Cora, my wife, was patiently waiting for me.

"Well, have you found it, dear?" she said.

I had not been able to make up my mind what I should say to her. I was too confused, too excited to invent a plausible story, and I told a deliberate lie.

"No, my dear," I said. "I must have mistaken the part of the ground. Let's go away now and come again on a brighter day The sight f all these tombs have upset and depressed me."

I don't think in her heart of hearts Cora had ever relished the idea of a visit to the cemetery, and she very readily fell in with my views.

The drive back to the hotel was a long one, but I scarcely spoke a word. Cora saw that I was thoughtful and depressed. She fancied it was the cemetery which had upset me, and she tried to lead my thoughts to other objects.

But all her efforts were in vain. I replied to her only in monosyllables. Do what I would I could think of but one thing, the fact that I, William Hengist Smith, was buried in the family grave at Highgate.

The idea haunted me. We had arranged to go to the theater that evening, and we went; but I saw and understood very little of the piece. I looked at the stage mechanically, but right through the painted scenery there rose up before me a monument to the dead, and upon it, in great black letters in bold relief stood out the name of William Hengist Smith.

I slept very little that night. I lay with wide-opened eyes, and let my mind grope blindly in the darkness for some clue to the great mystery.

I determined that at all risks and hazards I would investigate the matter. I absolutely declined to be buried alive.

On the following morning I told Cora that I had some important business which would take me to the city, and detain me there for the greater part of the day, and I went to Somerset House in order to get a copy of my death certificate.

I filled in the form, paid the fee, and after a short time the book was brought to me. To describe my feelings as I saw my name among the registered deaths would be impossible. My blood ran cold, my knees trembled; I felt as if I should fall to the ground.

But by a violent effort I pulled myself together and read as in a dream the meager details given.

I had been found drowned. A coroner's inquest had been held upon my body.

The certificate of my death, registered at Somerset House, had been received from the coroner, and I had been buried by his authority. That was all the information.

I procured a copy of the certificate, and thus armed with the dates I went out into the Strand, wondering what I had better do next.

I was determined to fathom the mystery and know the truth.

I wanted some one to help me, and yet I was afraid to trust any one with my secret. I did not want to identify myself too closely with the deceased gentleman. I was naturally nervous, seeing that I was staying in London with a lady whom I had married.

(To be concluded next week.)

The Wonders of the Firmament.

Sir Robert Ball's lectures to children on astronomy have been found extremely interesting and instructive to many who could not, strictly speaking, be included in a "juvenile audience." Sir Robert recently told his hearers that it was possible to weigh a star against the sun, and one star in the tail of the Great Bear was equal to forty of our suns. The stars in the Great Bear were moving, and between one representation of that constellation and another, which he showed upon a screen, an interval of 36,000 years would pass. The immense distance of the stars was illustrated by a reference to the nearest star. Alpha Centauri. Light traveled at the rate of 180,000 miles a second, and was eight minutes in reaching the earth from the sun; but the light from Alpha Centauri was three years on its way to the earth. As to the other stars, there were some that would not yet received a telegraphic message, could one have been sent, announcing the battle of Waterloo, even bearing in mind the fact that the electric current travels at the rate of 288,000 miles a second. Other stars would not yet have received the news of the landing of William the Conqueror in 1066, and some would not even have received the glad tiding of the first Christmas in Bethlehem, 1892 years ago. Sir Robert Ball went on to explain how sensitive plates could see, so to speak, thousands of stars gave some telescope could reveal, and gave some remarkable instances of the power of the photographic camera to see what the eye could not discover.

Stoves Without Flues.

There has recently appeared a fresh illustration of "what knowledge is of most worth" in the dangers that come from the pitiful ignorance of the simplest facts of science still prevailing among presumably well informed persons. Certain "patent fuels" have been put on sale, to be used in stoves without chimney connection, and are advertised as being entirely harmless. The natural result has followed. Gullible merchants, ministers and even doctors have been buying them and nearly smothering themselves or their friends with the gases which must result from the combustion of any form of carbon. The makers of these fuels state that ventilation is required with their apparatus, but their customers reason, why let in the cold air if the fuel is harmless, as stated? or they imagine that one opening from a room into a hallway secures "ventilation." Probably most of the victims of the patent fuels have read about the process of combustion, but they have not learned its nature from experiments that would make this knowledge real to them. Their education has been of the antiquated but not yet abandoned kind which substitutes the study of books for the study of things. As an explorer who tries to cross a deep river is drowned if he can not swim, so any one who lives in the present age, when natural forces are being put to service as never before, is badly off if he does not understand how to use these forces without letting them overwhelm him. Science is doing many wonderful things in these times, but its achievements always consist in employing the laws of nature, never in circumventing them.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Virtues of Salt.

A little salt rubbed on the cups will take off tea stains. Put into whitewash it will make it stick better. As a tooth-powder it will keep the teeth white and the gums hard and rosy. It is one of the best gargles for sore throat and a preventive of diphtheria if taken in time. Use salt and water to clean willow furniture; apply with brush and rub dry. Salt and water held in the mouth after having a tooth pulled will stop the bleeding. Prints rinsed with it in the water will hold their color and look brighter. Two teaspoonfuls in half a pint of tepid water is an emetic always on hand, and it is an antidote for poisoning from nitrate of silver. Neuralgia of the feet and limbs can be cured by bathing night and morning with salt and water as hot as can be borne. When taken out, rub the feet briskly with a coarse towel. Salt and water is one of the best remedies for sore eyes, and if applied in time will scatter the inflamation. Silk handkerchiefs and ribbons should be washed in salt water, and ironed wet, to obtain the best results. Food would be insipid and tasteless without it. Hemorrhages of the lungs or stomach are promptly checked by small doses of salt.

Peculiarities of the New Skirts.

Some of the new skirts are gored so tightly around the hips that it is almost impossible for the wearer to pull them over her head, and she could never get them off by stepping out of them. They are very pretty and becoming, but are exceedingly inconvenient to handle well. They are very pretty and graceful if they are not too stiff, and, if the gores are each one corded up with velvet or covered with a line of passementerie, they are very becoming to stout as well as thin figures which could not be said of our late lamented straight skirts. The trimming, too, is a pleasant change; but one shudders to think how it will be abused and overdone by amateurs and how many bad cuts will be atoned for by ruffles and furbelows

Musketry Training.

A writer in a German war journal commenting on the experience of the most recent wars, says that the new rifle has reduced all armies to nearly the same level, so far as arms are concerned. Even the effect of the individuality of the men will be to a certain extent lost, and the advantage will now be on the side of those who have had the best training. This can only be tested when within ranges at which small objects can be aimed at. The grand end of musketry instruction must now be to make men accurate shots at distances of from 500 yards to 600 yards.

Various Sources of Silk.

Silk worms are not the sole source of the production of silk; it is also obtained from several vegetable substances, but of an inferior and less durable description. Excellent colored silk is obtained from the prepared and finer fibers of the bamboo, which is much in demand for clothing in the tropical countries from its lightness and porosity. Another form of silk is obtained from the pods of the silk cotton tree, of which there are several varieties in existence, the material obtained from them being known as vegetable silk.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why the Third Finger Was Chosen.

How many women who fondly love the golden symbol of their wedding vow, know why they wear it on the third finger of their left hand? That particular digit was chosen because it was believed by the Egyptians to be directly connected by a slender nerve to the heart itself, and these ancient worshipers of Isis held this finger sacred to Apollo and the sun, and, therefore, gold was the metal chosen for the ring.

The distillation of alcoholic liquors in Great Britain was extensively practiced as early as the sixteenth century.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

Some Queer Things About Figures.

The obstinacy of figures in "not adding up," or being comfortably subtracted, or doing any of the other things that bother the average schoolboy, is so well known that no one denies the assertion that "figures are stubborn facts," and to most people arithmetic is a dry and uninteresting study.

But an old writer, who gives quaint meanings to numbers, and wanders off delightfully from his text, undertakes to teach the art of reducing them to order. Their various characteristics, according to Mr. William Ingpen, who wrote of them nearly three hundred years ago, make the figures seem very much alive, and although "number one" in a certain sense is so very important, it is rather slightingly mentioned as not entitled to rank with the numerals because it cannot be divided except into fractions. Yet in quoting some things that are singular, and can never be plural—one soul and one head to every body, one king in a kingdom, one queen in a beehive, one deluge, one shepherd to a flock, one leader among cranes, etc.—the insignificant figure comes to the front again.

Two is very comically called a "weak" number—the weakest of numbers, and an unlucky one, especially to English kings—only George II. of all those whose names are followed by the figure, escaping a violent death or serious misfortune. Thus William II. was shot through the heart by an arrow in the New Forest; Henry II. died of a broken heart from the unnatural conduct of his children; Edward II. and Richard II. were intentionally murdered; Charles II. lost his father in early youth by what has been called a judicial murder, and wandered crownless for ten years; while James II., after a short reign, was obliged to resign all hope of ruling England.

Three receives commendation as complete and perfect in itself, the number of the Trinity. Every earthly thing, too, has three parts—the beginning, the middle and the end. A wise man, too, may be known by three things—never telling a lie, never speaking ill of his neighbor and never talking without sufficient cause Cheese, which so often gets a bad name, is declared to be endowed with three valuable properties those who eat it will never grow old, for they will be sure to die in their youth; they are protected against robbery, for their nightly coughing is equal to an alarm clock; and in walking out they need not fear cross dogs, as they will always be obliged to support themselves with sticks.

Four has a finish and magnificence about it that are very imposing. It is the square number, the number of the elements, of the points of the compass, the virtues, the Evangelists, the patriarchs, and the rivers that encircled the Garden of Eden. Five also receives honorable mention as a number of great dignity; and it is noticed in connection with it that there are five giants mentioned in Scripture, and five also in profane history. Other illustrations are drawn from all sorts of unexpected sources and may be called decidedly far-fetched.

Six is still higher in the scale, being described as "full, perfect and divine;" but seven outranks, because it contains three and four, the triangle and the square, by which all things are measured. Many superstitions of the olden time were connected with this number; and in 1502 a book was published at Leipsic divided into seven volumes, each containing seven chapters, and each chapter seven heads in praise of the number seven. A seventh son of a seventh son is occasionally advertised, even in these enlightened days, as a curer of all diseases.

For the rest, eight is solid, being made from a double square; while nine is a threefold card of the powerful number three. Ten is the perfection of power and virtue, containing all the others within it, for ten is the number of the Commandments; but eleven is "wicked" and "unlucky," for the remarkable reason that it is the first to break out of the pale of these same Commandments. Twelve is again fortunate and honored, for there are twelve Apostles and twelve signs of the zodiac.

No one would suspect that so much could be done with figures without working them into sums; but unfortunately for the hater of arithmetic, all the romancing in the world cannot convert them from their original use.—Harper's Young People.

A Wrestling Lion.

The boxing kangaroo, which for a time held sway in London, has given place to a wrestling lion. This lion, who is named Prince, is a little over six years old, and a great big fellow from the forest. But he is very tractable, and is under the care of a West Indian negro by the name of "Alex" Amousa. The following account is given by a London paper of the match which is repeated daily before interested crowds:

"Quietly he enters the lion's cage, and at a sign from Alex the brute reared himself up, and the pair 'took hold' in the Cumberland fashion, only neither could clasp hands around the body. The first fall was given in favor of his majesty the lion, who, simply by superior weight in the upper part of his body, bore his opponent down flat on his back. Again the couple got into grips, the lion apparently very unwilling this time. After a little maneuvering Alex attempted to twist the king of the beasts on his back, but failed lamentably, both falling side by side. For a while the lion rested on his haunches until in a catch-hold bout Alex threw him very cleverly by a singularly well executed twist. The fourth and last fall went to the sable champion, who very adroitly backhurled the leonine hero of the wrestling arena, and fell plump upon him. At the close of the wrestling Alex opened the jaws of the lion, and, while holding them apart, placed his head in the animal's mouth. After that Prince fired a pistol which was suspended from the roof of the cage, and then Alex and the lion lay down on the floor and positively cuddled each other. Before being supplied with his customary afternoon luncheon his majesty eats a couple of snacks of beef from Alex's mouth, and seemed to enjoy the toothsome morsels."

An Eagle and Its Foster-Children.

A resident of Achill island, on the west coast of Ireland, having succeeded in capturing a female eagle, placed it in a cage (made, of course, of the strongest materials) in front of his house on an open lawn. In due course it laid two eggs, and these being abstracted, two goose eggs of the common barn-yard kind were substituted. The eagle hatched them, and when the birds appeared, manifested all a mother's solicitude, feeding them with portions of the raw meat provided for her own refreshment. They wandered at will in and out of the bars of the cage all day, always returning to sleep under her wings at night; but if any stray goslin attempted to enter with them, it paid for its temerity with its life. One day the mate was seen hovering round, and finally perched on the cage. For several days he returned, and having, it would appear, used every argument in reason, he adopted that of force, and by a tremendous effort actually broke in the iron bars of the cage, and, entering it, seemed indignantly to protest at the apparent indifference of his mate to her surroundings; but all he could say did not seem to have any effect on her real or apparent apathy, and, leaving her to the fate she seemed contented with, he retired to his native cliffs, and never was seen after to approach the cage. In due course the imprisoned eagle died and was stuffed for her owners.

An Elephant's Intelligence.

In India domesticated elephants are usually given drink from large wooden troughs filled with well water by means of a pump, and it is commonly an elephant that fills the trough. Every morning he goes regularly to his task. While visiting a friend at his fine residence in India, a correspondent of a paper saw a large elephant engaged in pumping such a trough full of water.

In passing I noticed that one of the two tree-trunks which supported the trough at either end had rolled from its place, so that the trough, still elevated at one extremity, would begin to empty itself as soon as the water reached the level of the top at the other end, which lay on the ground.

I stopped to see if the elephant would discover anything wrong. Soon the water began to run off at the end which had lost its support.

The animal showed signs of perplexity when he saw this, but as the end nearest him lacked much of being full, he continued to pump.

Finally, seeing that the water continued to pass off, he left the pump-handle and began to consider the phenomenon. He seemed to find it difficult to explain. Three times he returned to his pumping, and three times he examined the trough. I was an absorbed looker-on, impatient to see what would be done.

He went and smelled of the tree-trunk which had rolled from under the trough. I thought for a moment that he was going to put it in its place again. But it was not, as I soon understood, the end which ran over that disturbed his mind, but the end which he found it impossible to fill.

Raising the trough, which he then allowed to rest for an instant on one of his huge feet, he rolled away the second supporting log with his trunk, and then set the trough down, so that it rested at both ends on the ground. He then returned to the pump and completed his task.

Hunting the Kangaroo.

"I ran this kangaroo over the desert and through the native shrub, called the malee, till at last I got him into a salt marsh.

"A big eucalyptus tree was just ahead, and he made for it as rapidly as possible. When he got to it he put his back to it, just as a hunted man at bay would do, and came to a halt.

"My two stag hounds that had been in pursuit immediately ran up. One was a magnificent dog, larger than the other, and a great favorite with me. He was a little too anxious, and closed in on the kangaroo. With one great swipe from his hind leg the kangaroo caught the dog from below the shoulder and ripped him clear down, tearing out his intestines. I could have shot the kangaroo before, but thought the dogs could manage him. I wouldn't have lost the dog for a deal of money.

"As it was, there was no help for it. I quickly fired and killed the ferocious brute. He was at least 150 pounds in weight, as quick as a weasel, and had claws like the talons of an eagle, only they were longer, like the claws of a grizzly bear.

"An odd thing about them, if you never noticed them, is that they are hooked, extremely sharp and surmount very long and powerful fingers, or, more properly speaking, toes, as they are on the hind feet."—New York Journal.

Making Toys of Coal.

One of the interesting small industries of the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania is the manufacture of "coal novelties." The novelties are articles of ornament or use turned out of chunks of prime anthracite coal, such as candlesticks, inkstands, napkin rings, match safes, watch charms and several others.

None but the very best coal is used. It is susceptible of a high polish, and the articles made from it are genuine novelties to people who live in other places than the coal regions. A one-armed man in a neighboring town makes a good living in the manufacture of coal novelties, and a Lehigh engineer turns out some nice ornaments of anthracite with the lathe. The articles bring high prices, but they are brittle and break easily.

Some time ago a Wyoming valley artist began to paint diminutive landscapes and marine views on small chunks of coal of irregular shape. He selected pieces that had a smooth surface of two or three or four inches, and on them he painted very handsome views. For a time they had a sale on account of the novelty, but the demand soon fell off, and the artists turned his talents to other forms of art.—New York Sun.

A Hero and His Horse.

Some years ago there lived on the coast Lincolnshire, England, a man named Richard Hoodless.

In the year 1833 Hoodless rode his horse through stormy waves to the wrecked Hermione. So high a sea was running that it was impossible to launch the life-boat. The faithful horse plunged onward, turning now and then for an instant when a wave threatened to engulf him. Obedient to the slightest pull of the rein, he swam to the sinking Hermione.

Two or three men clung to the brave steed's back, and the perilous journey shoreward was begun. Back and forth went Hoodless and his horse until the last man was rescued.

Hoodless found that his horse was entangled in a rope under the water. To dismount was impossible, and they were in imminent danger of being dashed against the ship's side. Fortunately, Hoodless lifted the rope with his foot, then pulling a sharp knife from his pocket, leaned forward in the water, cut the rope—no easy task in a stormy sea—and so got off in safety.

The Civil Japanese.

The Japanese are trained to civility from babyhood. Before a baby can speak it is taught to lift the hand to the forehead on receiving a gift. Should a child fail to make this signal of respect and gratitude it would be reproved by some bystander.

They walked sedately and quietly with books and slates under their arms. The sight of a bearded foreigner startled the first to come, but they made a respectable bow and passed on. The next ones repeated this civility, and as fast as the pupils came they made a profound reverence.

The innate gentleness of the people impressed the rambler. He records that he never saw a single instance among boys of that tyranical, bullying spirit so often observed in other countries, that delights in inflicting pain on weaker companions. Japanese children are well behaved, even toward each other.—Youth's Companion.

Money in Buttons.

Not long since I discovered a man in New York who makes a specialty of matching lost buttons. His shop, a dingy little low-ceilinged room, was surrounded by shelves on which were piled boxes of buttons of all sorts and conditions. While I was there a girl came in and asked him if he had any like those on her jacket. He took down several specimens, and presently found one which he sewed on. She paid him 10 cents. That is the usual price, though rare buttons sometimes come higher. At regular intervals he goes round collecting buttons among tailors and dressmakers, who save them for him and sell them very cheap. He has a set of regular customers, and they rarely go away without finding exactly what they want.—Lippincott's.

Noticed a Change.

When a man alters the cut of his whiskers all his friends notice a difference in him, but many of them are at a loss how to account for it. "What have you been doing?" they say "You look like another person."

Something like this happened, according to an exchange, when a woman returned home after a few days' absence, and heard her daughter playing on the piano.

"Where did you learn that new piece, Maria?" the mother asked.

"It isn't a new piece, mother. The piano has been tuned."

Decay of the Indians.

Much melancholy literature, prose and verse, has been indulged in about the decay of the Indians; how they are fading away like the mist on the mountain, the snow on the plain; a mere handful left of once mighty nations, and this feeble remnant the white man is driving into the Gulf of Mexico, the Pacific ocean or some other deep water. This diminution of the Indian census is a sad truth; but there remains the consolation that, with the disappearance of the Indians, will disappear the worst lot of scoundrels, white and mixed, that ever cursed the earth. It was noticed that at a recent payment of the government money to Indians at Anadarko, the Indians came many miles in the bitter weather and suffered indescribably in their camps to draw their money, and that whisky peddlers and gamblers reaped nearly every cent of it in a few hours. So it was in the beginning, and so it will be as long as the Indian lives a "ward" of the government. When the last Indian is laid in his grave it would be a boon if the last Indian robber were hung above the humble sepulcher.—Kansas City Star.

Keeping Iron and Steel from Ruting

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A simple method of keeping iron and steel from rusting is to coat them with a solution of rubber in benzel made about the consistency of cream. It may be applied with a brush and easily rubbed off when desired. A coating of more use where the "tooth" imparted by rubber would be disadvantageous is prepared by dissolving two parts of crystals of chloride of iron, two of antimony chloride and one of tannin in four of water. Apply with a sponge or rag and allow to dry. As many coats can be given as are deemed necessary. When dry it is washed with water, again allowed to dry and polished with linseed oil. The antimony solution should be as neatly neutral as possible.

A Soldier's Story.

"Given up to Die" by the Doctors.

He Thanks God for Sagwa and Prays for Its Success.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN., Aug. 15.

I deem it my duty to tender this my testimonial as an offer of gratitude for what "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa" has done for me. I came out of the army in the fall of '65, broken down by chronic dyspepsia in its worst form, and was also suffering enlargement of the heart. I consulted the best physicians, and visited institutions in the East, and one and all told me the same thing—I never could get well.

By suggestion of an old comrade I took "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa," and thank God for it. Sagwa has changed my life from misery and pain to one of health and gladness, and I can now eat anything without distress. My heart is all right and my friends are astonished.

The physician who knew of my case and heard of my cure said that a medicine that is capable of making such a cure, he not only endorses but cheerfully recommends to anyone.

If this testimonial comes under the notice of any soldier who is suffering, let him take the word of an old comrade—buy a bottle of Indian Sagwa at once, and may God prosper you with the success of this remedy is the grateful prayer of

MY TWO WIVES.

CHAPTER II.

One day my wife left a letter on the table of our sitting room. It was lying open, and I read it, and learned something which astonished me. The compromise had been agreed to by the relatives in consequence of a letter having been submitted to them, a letter the testator had written to Miss Ellis, and which she had only recently found. It was the letter which I had signed.

I taxed my wife with the deception she had practiced on me. I was furious, but she only laughed. I swore that I would make a clean breast of it.

Still she laughed.

"Nonsense," she said; "you committed the forgery, not I. And you are my husband. A husband cannot give evidence against his wife."

I was thunderstruck. She had married me to to close my mouth.

"Still," I cried, "I can go to the lawyers on the other side. They will be able then to take some action."

Still she laughed. "You'll find yourself in a very awkward position if you do," she said.

I began to think the matter over. I saw she was right. I certainly should have some difficulty in making people believe that I forged the signature and married her directly she got the money without being in any way a party to the plot.

But I felt that I had been duped—made a catspaw. Then my long pent up anger broke forth and in a torrent of words I told the lady what I thought of her conduct.

When I had exhausted myself she had her say.

Speaking calmly and deliberately, she informed me that she was by no means sorry I had discovered the truth. It would save any further deception on her part, and perhaps it was as well that we thoroughly understood each other.

She had no desire to claim my society any longer. In fact, she very much preferred to be her own mistress. No good would ever come of "scenes," and as we were not likely to become more friendly as time passed on, the best thing I could do was to go home again and leave her to manage her own affairs.

I quite agreed with her that henceforward there could be no common life for us, and that evening I packed my portmanteau and took my departure, and so ended my honeymoon.

I had asked for a week's holiday, and so I went back to my berth in the city, and left my wife and her £30,000 for good and all.

I was determined to be so far clear as this—that if anything ever did come to light it should be proved that I had no share of the spoil—that directly I found out the truth I left the woman undisputed mistress of her fortune and continued to earn my own living.

I saw my wife once after that. She wrote me to meet her in London. I kept the appointment and she proposed a compact. No one knew of our marriage. She would not bear my name and she would leave me free from all responsibility on her behalf.

I was quite agreeable, and so it was settled. But she insisted on a proper deed of separation in which I agreed not to molest her. I accepted the condition, we went to a solicitor's, the deed was drawn up and signed, and we parted outside the office. From that moment I believe she went back into the world under her maiden name, and I—well, I grew mad with myself. I grew careless, reckless, despondent, and I took to drink.

I didn't take to it all at once. I began, as many men do when sorrow and trouble come upon them, to hate being alone at night; and so, when the day's work was done, instead of going home, I loafed about the streets, and went into bar parlors and drank, not for drinking's sake, but to still the gnawing pain at my heart.

From taking a little now and then, I grew to take a good deal often. I acquired the taste for drink. The drink habit grew on me, and fastened its fatal coils about me. I tried at first to resist it, but the resistance was a feeble one, and after the first struggle I gave myself up body and soul to the great curse.

I didn't wait till evening now to dull my brain with alcohol. I drank spirits morning, noon and night. Whenever I could slip out of the office for a few minutes I went off and "had a drink."

It had become a necessity with me now. I had to drink to enable me to do my work, and then I did the work badly.

A year after my marriage I was dismissed from my situation, and I thought a change would do me good.

I felt it was my one chance of shaking off the fatal habit which was breaking down my health, and ruining me body and soul. With a desperate effort I managed, after a time, to wean myself from drink. I tried several times, but broke down, but at last I succeeded. Then I said to myself that I would see the world. My mother had just died, and the little capital that came to her from the wreck of my father's business was mine. It was only a few hundred pounds, but it was enough to take me to Australia, and so to Australia I went.

I obtained a situation over there in the name of William Smith. I dropped the Hengist, because in Australia it was in the way, and I didn't want it. After I had been there about two years I fell in love with a young lady, the daughter of the people who kept the house where I lodged. Then I began to feel the bitterness of my position. My love was returned. Then I did another mad, wicked thing. I never intended to go back to England again. My wife and I were separated for ever—dead to each other. She had taken her maiden name again, and so I married; married my sweet little Cora and I lived with her as happy as the conscience I could not entirely stifle would allow me to be.

It is difficult for a man who has not been placed in my position to understand how I could bring myself to act as I did.

To understand it you must take into consideration all the circumstances and remember that I had never had any love for the woman who had marred my life by making me her dupe. I had never known one moment of the happiness of married life with her, and I rebelled against the idea of growing old, robbed by her trickery of the solace of a loving woman's companionship.

My position was a desperate one—the step I took to remedy it was a desperate one. But I persuaded myself that I was another man, that the husband of Marion Ellis mad disappeared from the world and that the husband of Cora Williamson had nothing in common with him. And persuading myself thus, I refused any longer to be miserable, and determined to make the best of my life and let my terrible secret die if need be with me.

After my marriage I settled down, and my good star seemed to be in the ascendant. With a little capital Cora's father lent me I went into business, speculated and prospered, and at the end of another two years I was fairly well off.

We had a sweet little home, and I was supremely happy. Cora was a devoted wife, and from the first hour of our marriage we never had an angry word.

Sometimes in the silence of the night I would wake up and think of the other woman and the other life. But I never let the thought linger. I drove it away and at last brought myself almost to believe that the past was a dream—a nightmare—a something which was only the creation of my own imagination.

The good luck which had set in after my marriage with Cora continued, and at last a big successful coup made me the possessor of what might without exaggeration be called a fortune. At any rate I was placed beyond the necessity of work and had leisure to enjoy life and to devote myself to my wife's society and my own amusement.

Then there came upon me an intense longing to go over to England for a while—to see the old country once again. My wife was very anxious to go. It had been the dream of her life to see Europe.

Where was the danger. I was only Mr. William Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Smith could stay at any hotel without attracting attention to their names, and the other woman was hardly likely to meet us or even to know of Cora's existence. We were separated. She was Miss Ellis, a spinster, and if the worst came to the worst she couldn't betray me without the story of why I left her coming out, and that might be awkward for the £30,000.

She would have to account for taking her maiden name. She would have to inflict such an injury upon me by taking proceedings that she would be sure that I should not spare her in return.

She had told me at the time we separated that all she desired was to left free. Was she likely, even if by a remote chance she learned of my marriage, to sacrifice her freedom and proclaim herself my wife?

She had never loved me—there could be no jealousy. She had everything to gain by holding her tongue, everything to lose by makng me her enemy. Again my fatal habit of arranging matters to suit my own views came into play. I convinced myself that there was no earthly chance of Marion crossing my path or assuming a hostile attitude.

And so at last we sailed for England. In London we went to the Langham hotel. I showed my wife all the sights of the great city, and she was delighted.

One day I thought I should like to show her my mother's grave, so I took her to Highgate, where we had buried my mother beside my father in the family grave he had purchased years before the crash came.

I had some difficulty in finding the tomb, so I left my wife on the gravel path while I went wandering about.

I found it at last.

A feeling of sorrow came over me as I gazed on the spot where my parents had lain in the grave side by side so long while I had been far away in a strange land beyond the seas.

The tears came into my eyes, and the mist before them prevented my seeing very clearly at first.

I saw my father's name, and immediately under it my mother's.

Also of Jane,
Wife of the above
Who entered into her rest
August, 188—.

Poor mother! I made up my mind to come again to the cemetery before I left, and lay a wreath of immortelles upon her tomb.

It would be at least a sign of my having remembered her when I was far away.

I was just turnng away to go and bring my wife to the grave when I saw that there was a further inscription underneath my mother's. I looked at it for a moment, then I started back with a wild cry of astonishment.

Did my eyes deceive, was I the victim of some extraordinary illusion. No, there were the big black letters upon the marble slab before me.

Also of
William Hengist Smith,
Son of the above,
Who Died September the —, 188—,
Aged 24,
And is here Interred.

Son of the above. I was their only son. My name was William Hengist Smith.

I was looking at my own tomb. I was dead and buried, and my body lay beneath that marble slab in Highgate cemetery.

As soon as I had recovered from the shock which the sight of my own name upon our family grave at Highgate caused me, my first thought was for Cora.

She was waiting for me on the gravel path some little distance away. I determined to go to her at once, and make some excuse for not showing her my mother's grave.

My brain was in a whirl. Even after the first shock of horror and surprise had passed away I could hardly realize that I was not dreaming.

But there before me was the inscription. It could not mean any one else but myself. I was the only child of William and Jane Smith, and my name was William Hengist Smith.

At first I imagined that some story of my death had reached England, and some one had placed my name upon the tombstone as a memorial. But the words, "and is here interred," made that theory untenable. I was alive, alive and looking at the place here my lifeless body was supposed to be resting.

Some one, therefore, must have been buried who was supposed to be me.

But who had supposed such a thing, and who was the dead man who had my name upon his coffin lid?

With my mind full of this strange and awful mystery I mechanically made my way through the tombs until I came to the place where Cora, my wife, was patiently waiting for me.

"Well, have you found it, dear?" she said.

I had not been able to make up my mind what I should say to her. I was too confused, too excited to invent a plausible story, and I told a deliberate lie.

"No, my dear," I said. "I must have mistaken the part of the ground. Let's go away now and come again on a brighter day The sight f all these tombs have upset and depressed me."

I don't think in her heart of hearts Cora had ever relished the idea of a visit to the cemetery, and she very readily fell in with my views.

The drive back to the hotel was a long one, but I scarcely spoke a word. Cora saw that I was thoughtful and depressed. She fancied it was the cemetery which had upset me, and she tried to lead my thoughts to other objects.

But all her efforts were in vain. I replied to her only in monosyllables. Do what I would I could think of but one thing, the fact that I, William Hengist Smith, was buried in the family grave at Highgate.

The idea haunted me. We had arranged to go to the theater that evening, and we went; but I saw and understood very little of the piece. I looked at the stage mechanically, but right through the painted scenery there rose up before me a monument to the dead, and upon it, in great black letters in bold relief stood out the name of William Hengist Smith.

I slept very little that night. I lay with wide-opened eyes, and let my mind grope blindly in the darknsess for some clue to the great mystery.

I determined that at all risks and hazards I would investigate the matter. I absolutely declined to be buried alive.

On the following morning I told Cora that I had some important business which would take me to the city, and detain me there for the greater part of the day, and I went to Somerset House in order to get a copy of my death certificate.

I filled in the form, paid the fee, and after a short time the book was brought to me. To describe my feelings as I saw my name among the registered deaths would be impossible. My blood ran cold, my knees trembled; I felt as if I should fall to the ground.

But by a violent effort I pulled myself together and read as in a dream the meager details given.

I had been found drowned. A coroner's inquest had been held upon my body.

The certificate of my death, registered at Somerset House, had been received from the coroner, and I had been buried by his authority. That was all the information.

I procured a copy of the certificate, and thus armed with the dates I went out into the Strand, wondering what I had better do next.

I was determined to fathom the mystery and know the truth.

I wanted some one to help me, and yet I was afraid to trust any one with my secret. I did not want to identify myself too closely with the deceased gentleman. I was naturally nervous, seeing that I was staying in London with a lady whom I had married.

The Wonders of the Firmament.

Sir Robert Ball's lectures to children on astronomy have been found extremely interesting and instructive to many who could not, strictly speaking, be included in a "juvenile audience." Sir Robert recently told his hearers that it was possible to weigh a star against the sun, and one star in the tail of the Great Bear was equal to forty of our suns. The stars in the Great Bear were moving, and between one representation of that constellation and another, which he showed upon a screen, an interval of 36,000 years would pass. The immense distance of the stars was illustrated by a reference to the nearest star. Alpha Centauri. Light traveled at the rate of 180,000 miles a second. and was eight minutes in reaching the earth from the sun; but the light from Alpha Centauri was three years on its way to the earth. As to the other stars, there were some that would not yet received a telegraphic message, could one have been sent, announcing the battle of Waterloo, even bearing in mind the fact that the electric current travels at the rate of 288,000 miles a second. Other stars would not yet have received the news of the landing of William the Conqueror in 1066, and some would not even have received the glad tiding of the first Christmas in Bethlehem, 1892 years ago. Sir Robert Ball went on to explain how sensitive plates could see, so to speak, thousands of stars gave some telescope could reveal, and gave some remarkable instances of the power of the photographic camera to see what the eye could not discover.

Stoves Without Flues.

There has recently appeared a fresh illustration of "what knowledge is of most worth" in the dangers that come from the pitiful ignorance of the simplest facts of science still prevailing among presumably well informed persons. Certain "patent fuels" have been put on sale, to be used in stoves without chimney connection, and are advertised as being entirely harmless. The natural result has followed. Gullible merchants, ministers and even doctors have been buying them and nearly smothering themselves or their friends with the gases which must result from the combustion of any form of carbon. The makers of these fuels state that ventilation is required with their apparatus, but their customers reason, why let in the cold air if the fuel is harmless, as stated? or they imagine that one opening from a room into a hallway secures "ventilation." Probably most of the victims of the patent fuels have read about the process of combustion, but they have not learned its nature from experiments that would make this knowledge real to them. Their education has been of the antiquated but not yet abandoned kind which substitutes the study of books for the study of things. As an explorer who tries to cross a deep river is drowned if he can not swim, so any one who lives in the present age, when natural forces are being put to service as never before, is badly off if he does not understand how to use these forces without letting them overwhelm him. Science is doing many wonderful things in these times, but its achievements always consist in employing the laws of nature, never in circumventing them.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Virtues of Salt.

A little salt rubbed on the cups will take off tea stains. Put into whitewash it will make it stick better. As a tooth-powder it will keep the teeth white and the gums hard and rosy. It is one of the best gargles for sore throat and a preventive of diphtheria if taken in time. Use salt and water to clean willow furniture; apply with brush and rub dry. Salt and water held in the mouth after having a tooth pulled will stop the bleeding. Prints rinsed with it in the water will hold their color and look brighter. Two teaspoonfuls in half a pint of tepid water is an emetic always on hand, and it is an antidote for poisoning from nitrate of silver. Neuralgia of the feet and limbs can be cured by bathing night and morning with salt and water as hot as can be borne. When taken out, rub the feet briskly with a coarse towel. Salt and water is one of the best remedies for sore eyes, and if applied in time will scatter the inflamation. Silk handkerchiefs and ribbons should be washed in salt water, and ironed wet, to obtain the best results. Food would be insipid and tasteless without it. Hemorrhages of the lungs or stomach are promptly checked by small doses of salt.

Peculiarities of the New Skirts.

Some of the new skirts are gored so tightly around the hips that it is almost impossible for the wearer to pull them over her head, and she could never get them off by stepping out of them. They are very pretty and becoming, but are exceedingly inconvenient to handle as well. They are very pretty and graceful if they are not too stiff, and, if the gores are each one corded up with velvet or covered with a line of passementerie, they are very becoming to stout as well as thin figures which could not be said of our late lamented straight skirts. The trimming, too, is a pleasant change; but one shudders to think how it will be abused and overdone by amateurs and how many bad cuts will be atoned for by ruffles and furbelows.

Musketry Training.

A writer in a German war journal commenting on the experience of the most recent wars, says that the new rifle has reduced all armies to nearly the same level, so far as arms are concerned. Even the effect of the individuality of the men will be to a certain extent lost, and the advantage will now be on the side of those who have had the best training. This can only be tested when within ranges at which small objects can be aimed at. The grand end of musketry instruction must now be to make men accurate shots at distances of from 500 yards to 600 yards.

Various Sources of Silk.

Silk worms are not the sole source of the production of silk; it is also obtained from several vegetable substances, but of an inferior and less durable description. Excellent colored silk is obtained from the prepared and finer fibers of the bamboo, which is much in demand for clothing in the tropical countries from its lightness and porosity. Another form of silk is obtained from the pods of the silk cotton tree, of which there are several varieties in existence, the material obtained from them being known as vegetable silk.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why the Third Finger Was Chosen.

How many women who fondly love the golden symbol of their wedding vow, know why they wear it on the third finger of their left hand? That particular digit was chosen because it was believed by the Egyptians to be directly connected by a slender nerve to the heart itself, and these ancient worshipers of Isis held this finger sacred to Apollo and the sun, and, therefore, gold was the metal chosen for the ring.

The distillation of alcoholic liquors in Great Britain was extensively practiced as early as the sixteenth century.

Some Queer Things About Figures.

The obstinacy of figures in "not adding up," or being comfortably subtracted, or doing any of the other things that bother the average schoolboy, is so well known that no one denies the assertion that "figures are stubborn facts," and to most people arithmetic is a dry and uninteresting study.

But an old writer, who gives quaint meanings to numbers, and wanders off delightfully from his text, undertakes to teach the art of reducing them to order. Their various characteristics, according to Mr. William Ingpen, who wrote of them nearly three hundred years ago, make the figures seem very much alive, and although "number one" in a certain sense is so very important, it is rather slightingly mentioned as not entitled to rank with the numerals because it cannot be divided except into fractions. Yet in quoting some things that are singular, and can never be plural—one soul and one head to every body, one king in a kingdom, one queen in a beehive, one deluge, one shepherd to a flock, one leader among cranes, etc.—the insignificant figure comes to the front again.

Two is very comically called a "weak" number—the weakest of numbers, and an unlucky one, especially to English kings—only George II. of all those whose names are followed by the figure, escaping a violent death or serious misfortune. Thus William II. was shot through the heart by an arrow in the New Forest; Henry II. died of a broken heart from the unnatural conduct of his children; Edward II. and Richard II. were intentionally murdered; Charles II. lost his father in early youth by what has been called a judicial murder, and wandered crownless for ten years; while James II., after a short reign, was obliged to resign all hope of ruling England.

Three receives commendation as complete and perfect in itself, the number of the Trinity. Every earthly thing, too, has three parts—the beginning, the middle and the end. A wise man, too, may be known by three things—never telling a lie, never speaking ill of his neighbor and never talking without sufficient cause Cheese, which so often gets a bad name, is declared to be endowed with three valuable properties those who eat it will never grow old, for they will be sure to die in their youth; they are protected against robbery, for their nightly coughing is equal to an alarm clock; and in walking out they need not fear cross dogs, as they will always be obliged to support themselves with sticks.

Four has a finish and magnificence about it that are very imposing. It is the square number, the number of the elements, of the points of the compass, the virtues, the Evangelists, the patriarchs, and the rivers that encircled the Garden of Eden. Five also receives honorable mention as a number of great dignity; and it is noticed in connection with it that there are five giants mentioned in Scripture, and five also in profane history. Other illustrations are drawn from all sorts of unexpected sources and may be called decidedly far-fetched.

Six is still higher in the scale, being described as "full, perfect and divine;" but seven outranks, because it contains three and four, the triangle and the square, by which all things are measured. Many superstitions of the olden time were connected with this number; and in 1502 a book was published at Leipsic divided into seven volumes, each containing seven chapters, and each chapter seven heads in praise of the number seven. A seventh son of a seventh son is occasionally advertised, even in these enlightened days, as a curer of all diseases.

For the rest, eight is solid, being made from a double square; while nine is a threefold card of the powerful number three. Ten is the perfection of power and virtue, containing all the others within it, for ten is the number of the Commandments; but eleven is "wicked" and "unlucky," for the remarkable reason that it is the first to break out of the pale of these same Commandments. Twelve is again fortunate and honored, for there are twelve Apostles and twelve signs of the zodiac.

No one would suspect that so much could be done with figures without working them into sums; but unfortunately for the hater of arithmetic, all the romancing in the world cannot divert them from their original use.—Harper's Young People.

A Wrestling Lion.

The boxing kangaroo, which for a time held sway in London, has given place to a wrestling lion. This lion, who is named Prince, is a little over six years old, and a great big fellow from the forest. But he is very tractable, and is under the care of a West Indian negro by the name of "Alex" Amousa. The following account is given by a London paper of the match which is repeated daily before interested crowds:

"Quietly he enters the lion's cage, and at a sign from Alex the brute reared himself up, and the pair 'took hold' in the Cumberland fashion, only neither could clasp hands around the body. The first fall was given in favor of his majesty the lion, who, simply by superior weight in the upper part of his body, bore his opponent down flat on his back. Again the couple got into grips, the lion apparently very unwilling this time. After a little maneuvering Alex attempted to twist the king of the beasts on his back, but failed lamentably, both falling side by side. For a while the lion rested on his haunches until in a catch-hold bout Alex threw him very cleverly by a singularly well executed twist. The fourth and last fall went to the sable champion, who very adroitly backhurled the leonine hero of the wrestling arena, and fell plump upon him. At the close of the wrestling Alex opened the jaws of the lion, and, while holding them apart, placed his head in the animal's mouth. After that Prince fired a pistol which was suspended from the roof of the cage, and then Alex and the lion lay down on the floor and positively cuddled each other. Before being supplied with his customary afternoon luncheon his majesty eats a couple of snacks of beef from Alex's mouth, and seemed to enjoy the toothsome morsels."

An Eagle and Its Foster-Children.

A resident of Achill island, on the west coast of Ireland, having succeeded in capturing a female eagle, placed it in a cage (made, of course, of the strongest materials) in front of his house on an open lawn. In due course it laid two eggs, and these being abstracted, two goose eggs of the common barn-yard kind were substituted. The eagle hatched them, and when the birds appeared, manifested all a mother's solicitude, feeding them with portions of the raw meat provided for her own refreshment. They wandered at will in and out of the bars of the cage all day, always returning to sleep under her wings at night; but if any stray goslin attempted to enter with them, it paid for its temerity with its life. One day the mate was seen hovering round, and finally perched on the cage. For several days he returned, and having, it would appear, used every argument in reason, he adopted that of force, and by a tremendous effort actually broke in the iron bars of the cage, and, entering it, seemed indignantly to protest at the apparent indifference of his mate to her surroundings; but all he could say did not seem to have any effect on her real or apparent apathy, and, leaving her to the fate she seemed contented with, he retired to his native cliffs, and never was seen after to approach the cage. In due course the imprisoned eagle died and was stuffed for her owners.

An Elephant's Intelligence.

In India domesticated elephants are usually given drink from large wooden troughs filled with well water by means of a pump, and it is commonly an elephant that fills the trough. Every morning he goes regularly to his task,

While visiting a friend at his fine residence in India, a correspondent of a paper saw a large elephant engaged in pumping such a trough full of water.

In passing I noticed that one of the two tree-trunks which supported the trough at either end had rolled from its place, so that the trough, still elevated at one extremity, would begin to empty itself as soon as the water reached the level of the top at the other end, which lay on the ground.

I stopped to see if the elephant would discover anything wrong. Soon the water began to run off at the end which had lost its support.

The animal showed signs of perplexity when he saw this, but as the end nearest him lacked much of being full, he continued to pump.

Finally, seeing that the water continued to pass off, he left the pump-handle and began to consider the phenomenon. He seemed to find it difficult to explain. Three times he returned to his pumping, and three times he examined the trough. I was an absorbed looker-on, impatient to see what would be done.

He went and smelled of the tree-trunk which had rolled from under the trough. I thought for a moment that he was going to put it in its place again. But it was not, as I soon understood, the end which ran over that disturbed his mind, but the end which he found it impossible to fill.

Raising the trough, which he then allowed to rest for an instant on one of his huge feet, he rolled away the second supporting log with his trunk, and then set the trough down, so that it rested at both ends on the ground. He then returned to the pump and completed his task.

Hunting the Kangaroo.

"I ran this kangaroo over the desert and through the native shrub, called the malee, till at last I got him into a salt marsh.

"A big eucalyptus tree was just ahead, and he made for it as rapidly as possible. When he got to it he put his back to it, just as a hunted man at bay would do, and came to a halt.

"My two stag hounds that had been in pursuit immediately ran up. One was a magnificent dog, larger than the other, and a great favorite with me. He was a little too anxious, and closed in on the kangaroo. With one great swipe from his hind leg the kangaroo caught the dog from below the shoulder and ripped him clear down, tearing out his intestines. I could have shot the kangaroo before, but thought the dogs could manage him. I wouldn't have lost the dog for a deal of money.

"As it was, there was no help for it. I quickly fired and killed the ferocious brute. He was at least 150 pounds in weight, as quick as a weasel, and had claws like the talons of an eagle, only they were longer, like the claws of a grizzly bear.

"An odd thing about them, if you never noticed them, is that they are hooked, extremely sharp and surmount very long and powerful fingers, or, more properly speaking, toes, as they are on the hind feet."—New York Journal.

Making Toys of Coal.

One of the interesting small industries of the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania is the manufacture of "coal novelties." The novelties are articles of ornament or use turned out of chunks of prime anthracite coal, such as candlesticks, inkstands, napkin rings, match safes, watch charms and several others.

None but the very best coal is used. It is susceptible of a high polish, and the articles made from it are genuine novelties to people who live in other places than the coal regions. A one-armed man in a neighboring town makes a good living in the manufacture of coal novelties, and a Lehigh engineer turns out some nice ornaments of anthracite with the lathe. The articles bring high prices, but they are brittle and break easily.

Some time ago a Wyoming valley artist began to paint diminutive landscapes and marine views on small chunks of coal of irregular shape. He selected pieces that had a smooth surface of two or three or four inches, and on them he painted very handsome views. For a time they had a sale on account of the novelty, but the demand soon fell off, and the artists turned his talents to other forms of art.—New York Sun.

A Hero and His Horse.

In the year 1833 Hoodless rode his horse through stormy waves to the wrecked Hermione. So high a sea was running that it was impossible to launch the life-boat. The faithful horse plunged onward, turning now and then for an instant when a wave threatened to engulf him. Obedient to the slightest pull of the rein, he swam to the sinking Hermione.

Two or three men clung to the brave steed's back, and the perilous journey shoreward was begun. Back and forth went Hoodless and his horse until the last man was rescued.

Hoodless found that his horse was entangled in a rope under the water. To dismount was impossible, and they were in imminent danger of being dashed against the ship's side. Fortunately, Hoodless lifted the rope with his foot, then pulling a sharp knife from his pocket, leaned forward in the water, cut the rope—no easy task in a stormy sea—and so got off in safety.

The Civil Japanese.

The Japanese are trained to civility from babyhood. Before a baby can speak it is taught to lift the hand to the forehead on receiving a gift. Should a child fail to make this signal of respect and gratitude it would be reproved by some bystander.

They walked sedately and quietly with books and slates under their arms. The sight of a bearded foreigner startled the first to come, but they made a respectable bow and passed on. The next ones repeated this civility, and as fast as the pupils came they made a profound reverence.

The innate gentleness of the people impressed the rambler. He records that he never saw a single instance among boys of that tyranical, bullying spirit so often observed in other countries, that delights in inflicting pain on weaker companions. Japanese children are well behaved, even toward each other.—Youth's Companion.

Money in Buttons.

Not long since I discovered a man in New York who makes a specialty of matching lost buttons. His shop, a dingy little low-ceilinged room, was surrounded by shelves on which were piled boxes of buttons of all sorts and conditions. While I was there a girl came in and asked him if he had any like those on her jacket. He took down several specimens, and presently found one which he sewed on. She paid him 10 cents. That is the usual price, though rare buttons sometimes come higher. At regular intervals he goes round collecting buttons among tailors and dressmakers, who save them for him and sell them very cheap. He has a set of regular customers, and they rarely go away without finding exactly what they want.—Lippincott's.

Noticed a Change.

When a man alters the cut of his whiskers all his friends notice a difference in him, but many of them are at a loss how to account for it. "What have you been doing?" they say "You look like another person."

Something like this happened, according to an exchange, when a woman returned home after a few days' absence, and heard her daughter playing on the piano.

"Where did you learn that new piece, Maria?" the mother asked.

"It isn't a new piece, mother. The piano has been tuned."

Decay of the Indians.

Much melancholy literature, prose and verse, has been indulged in about the decay of the Indians; how they are fading away like the mist on the mountain, the snow on the plain; a mere handful left of once mighty nations, and this feeble remnant the white man is driving into the Gulf of Mexico, the Pacific ocean or some other deep water. This diminution of the Indian census is a sad truth; but there remains the consolation that, with the disappearance of the Indians, will disappear the worst lot of scoundrels, white and mixed, that ever cursed the earth. It was noticed that at a recent payment of the government money to Indians at Anadarko, the Indians came many miles in the bitter weather and suffered indescribably in their camps to draw their money, and that whisky peddlers and gamblers reaped nearly every cent of it in a few hours. So it was in the beginning, and so it will be as long as the Indian lives a "ward" of the government. When the last Indian is laid in his grave it would be a boon if the last Indian robber were hung above the humble sepulcher.—Kansas City Star.

THEY'RE NOT ALL ALIKE

—blood medicines. There's only one that is so far-reaching and so unfailing in its effects that it can be guaranteed to do all that's promised for it. That is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If that doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

It's not like the sarsaparillas or ordinary Spring medicines. They claim to do good in March, April, and May. All the year round, and in all cases, the "Discovery" purifies the blood as nothing else can. Every blood-taint and disorder, Eczema, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, Tumors and Swellings—the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, and the worst forms of Scrofula, are completely and permanently cured by it.

Eight plain drunks were up before the municipal court on Wednesday morning, seven of whom plead guilty Five were sentenced to pay $7.40 or seven days in jail, and one received a fine of $10 or ten days, and an old timer, John Rooney, was given $25 or 30 days in jail on bread and water. Three of the above paid there fine.

The endorsement that was given the artistic portion of "The MacKaye Spectatorium" enterprise, at Chicago, by Herr Anton Seidl, the graet New York orchestra leader, has created considerable of a stir among musical people. After being shown the model, Mr. Seidl said to a New York Post reporter:—"This enterprise will undoubtedly lead to the establishment of a grand American Bayreuth Festival." Mr. Seidl said, in a most enthusiastic way, that at "The MacKaye Spectatorium" would be realized greater scenic marvels than had been witnessed at the German capitals. He also expressed a belief that it would inaugurate a new era in the history of stage spectacle.

Our attention has been called to a clipping from a St. Cloud paper which was published in the DISPATCH some weeks since in relation to a women by name of Guy. We are informed on reliable authority that the party is in no wise related to Arthur Guy, formerly of this city, but now of St. Paul, as stated at the time of publication, and we publish this item to set the matter right as far as it concerns him.

The petition which was presented to the city council on Monday evening, while made up largely of signatures of the residents of the third and fourth ward, also contained the names of many of our most influential business men, who were generally considered opposed to such a course. A noticeable feature was the signature of one of the aldermen who voted against its acceptance and the instructions to the mayor.

Frank W. Smith, the noted lecturer and evangelist, is to visited our city early in April for a series of evangelistic services. They will be held in the Congregational and Methodist churches. As the object of these meetings is the good of the whole city, all the people are cordially invited to contribute to their success in every possible way. A preparatory union service will be held in the Congregational church next Sunday evening.

Markham called down.

In the captiol bill discussion on Thursday Mr. Markham made the statement that the people of his district desired a new captiol, and in accordance with their wishes he should vote for the bill. The people of Aitkin county repudiate the statement. They are unanimously opposed to the scheme and object most decidedly to further tax burdens until all property, whether held by private individuals or railroads corporations shall equally share such taxes.—Aitkin Age.

A Deserved Promotion.

Clyde Warner, who has been employed with the Northern Pacific shop force for the past four or five years, and who has been time-keeper at different places on the road for about eleven years, has been appointed assistant superintendent of motive power of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg. He was called to his new place by W. T. Small, superintendent of motive power, who formerly held the same place on the Northern Pacific. A large number of the friends of Mr. Warner gathered at the Como shops yesterday and presented him with a handsome token of their esteem and best wishes for his good fortune, Mr. Egleston making an address on behalf of the employes. His departure, which will occur today, will be greatly regretted.—Pioneer Press.

The information contained in the above item will be very gratifying to the many friends of Mr. Warner and his estimiable wife who reside in this city, who wish them success and happiness in their new home. The Press is in error in regard to Mr. Warner's title. He will be chief clerk of Mr. Small, instead of his assistant.

Reform That Will Reform.

A wave of reform in the police regulations of the city swept over the city council on Monday evening, when the council adopted a resolution directing the mayor to strictly enforce the state law in regard to closing saloons and gambling. This was done in response to a monster petition to that body requesting such action. The council also authorized Mayor Hemstead to appoint as many officers as he see fit in order to comply with their instructions. The mayor on being asked if he would do as directed by the council, stated that he certainly would strictly enforce the law if the council did not recede from its position at the special meeting tomorrow evening. He had no desire to buck the council. If they wanted the city run on puritanical principles, he would close the saloons at 11 p. m. and on Sundays, stop all gambling of every kind and close the sporting houses and drive the inmates out of the city. He doubted the financial wisdom of such a course, however, as he insisted it would drive thousands of dollars of legitimate trade with lumbermen out of the city. He would show them, however, that he was not dominated by the saloons, as had been charged, and it would not be for a day but while he was in authority. Unless somebody changes his mind in regard to this matter, it looks as though we were going to have reform with a big "R."

Deaths.

William Durham, an uncle of our efficient postmaster, died on Monday, the 20th inst., at his home three and a half miles east of the city, of brights decease, aged 60 years. He has resided on his farm here for several years, and was well known and respected by all our citizens. His funeral occurred on Wednesday at the house, Rev. Geo. Davis conducting the services.

Edward Huguelet died at the sanitarium on Sunday, 19th, of plurn pnuemonia, aged 23 years. He was brought here from Cromwell, where he worked for the N. P. on the section. His remains were shipped to St. Johns, Michigan, for burial.

SALOONS MUST CLOSE AT 11 P. M.

So says the Council to the Mayor at Monday Evening's Session.

The city council held a very interesting session on Monday evening, all the aldermen being present except alderman Lowe of the first ward. After the usual routine business incident to the opening of the session had been disposed of, the council considered and allowed quite a number of bills. The bill of Campbell & Smith for $10 was referred to purchasing committee and bill of Camp & McPherson to Health, Sewerage and Police Committee. The bill of J. McNaughton for $50 for services as member of the board of health was also referred to the health committee, Alderman Foglestrom making the motion. This action of the council displeased Mr. McNaughton, who ask permission to address the council on the matter, which he did, in a forcible manner. He became personal in his remarks which were directed at Alderman Foglestrom, when the president called him to order

The matter of the appointment of Geo. Bell as first engineer of the electric light plant by the superintendent was there taken up, and the appointment confirmed.

Mayor Hemstead then read a telegram from W. Graham asking for permission to open a variety theatre here. On motion the matter was referred to the Health, Sewerage and Police Committee.

A petition from the draymen that the dray license be reduced to $10 for a double team and $7 for a single team was presented, and on motion was laid on the table.

A petition from members of the Y. M. C. A. asking for free electric lights for the Y. M. C. A. building was referred to finance committee.

Applications and bonds of F. J. Stropp and R. R. Wise for liquor license were read and approved and licenses granted.

On motion ordinance No. 107, defining the duties of the electric light superintendent, received its first and second readings and was passed without a dissenting vote.

A petition containing over 600 signatures was presented by Rev. Ware, of the Presbyterian church, asking that the state laws requiring saloons to close at eleven p. m. and on Sundays, and against gambling, be enforced. Mr. Ware addressed the council at length in advocacy of the action asked for in the petition. Alderman Foglestrom made a motion that the petition be accepted and that the mayor be instructed to enforce the law. Mr. Ferris moved an amendment that it be referred to finance committee. The amendment was lost, Aldermen Ferris, Sanborn, Johnson and Parker voting aye, and Aldermen Paine, McMurtry, Foglestrom, Anderson and Williamson voting nay. The original motion was then voted on and was carried by one vote, Aldermen Paine, McMurtry, Foglestrom, Anderson and Williamson voting aye, and Aldermen Parker, Ferris, Sanborn and Johnson voting nay.

A motion was then made that the mayor be instructed to increase the police force as much as he deemed necessary, which was carried, Aldermen Paine and Foglestrom voting in the negative.

The room was then cleared and the council went into executive session. When the doors were opened a motion was carried that the chairman of the board of health be notified that R. R. Wise had placed new ice in with condemned ice in his ice house, and that he investigate the matter.

It was moved and carried that J. M. Gray, as agent for C. E. Gray, be notified to appear before the council at a special session Saturday evening, March 25th, at 7:30 p. m., and show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Motion made and unanimously carried that the city attorney be instructed to draw up an ordinance requiring all licensed saloon keepers to remove all blinds, curtains, shutters, etc., after eleven o'clock p. m. and on Sundays, so that officers will have an unobstructed view of the inside.

Council adjourned.

Katie Putnam.

Katie Putnam and her excellent company appeared here on Tuesday night in her new play entitled, "An Unclaimed Express Package," and was greeted by a large and highly appreciative audience. Miss Putnam has ever been a prime favorite since her first appearance in Seattle several years ago, and her coming is always hailed with delight by the theatre-going public. An Unclaimed Express Package is almost beautiful comedy drama affording full scope to the versatile talents of Miss Putnam. It is replete with brilliant comedy and pathos, clear in plot, and the characters are all well cast.

Miss Putnam has been on the stage for years and each succeeding year renders her more popular than the last until the name of Katie Putnam has become a household word.

No one admiring wit and pathos should fail to see this little lady, who seems to possess the magic power of controlling the feelings of her audiance at will, causing the cheek to dimple with smiles or to bedim the eye with a tear.

On Wednesday and Thursday nigats Miss Putnam delighted large audiences in Little Maverick and Dad's Girl. In each and every one of her plays Miss Putnam was called before the curtain at the conclusion of every act.—Seattle Dramatic Star.

The above excellent company will appear at the opera house in this city on March 30th.

And when you are desirous of purchasing furniture call on D. M. Clark & Co.—Their new spring stock has just arrived and you should see it.

DISTRICT COURT.

Three Indictments Against Saloon Keepers for Unlawful Selling.

District court has been in session since Monday, Judge Holland presiding. The Grand jury was in session three days and found four indictments as follows:

A. R. Davis, charged with assault.

J. M. Gray, charged with selling liquor to a minor.

Nelson J. Hatt, for selling whiskey to an habitual drunkard.

The cases disposed of this far are: Munson & Merriott vs. S. W. Searles & Co. Dismissed as to all defendants except C. H. Douglas.

H. J. Spencer vs. Henry & Bertha Theviot. Settled while on trial.

Chas. Ruffee vs. True Moores. Verdict for plaintiff $125.

Wm. Conrad vs. Jacob Dobmeier. Verdict for plaintiff $1.00.

Wm Isaacson vs. Matt Eresterin Verdict for plaintiff $150.

True & Wetherby vs. J. J. McDonald. Settled.

M. L. Patterson vs. Ellen Mooers and Chas Ruffee. Settled.

Wm Folks vs. John Bubar. Settled.

Leon E. Lum vs. D. M. Clark et al., and Jas. Callahan vs. Mary Callahan are court cases and will be tried next week. All the rest of the cases on the calendar as published last week were continued. The case of Petter Duchane vs. The Brainerd School District is now on trial, which is the last of the civil cases.

CHOKED HIS WIFE.

C. H. Closterman Causes Another Street Scene.

Under the above heading the Minneapolis Times adds another chapter to the recent escapades of C. H. Closterman, formerly of this city. The Times then continues:

C. H. Closterman, of Montana, whose recent escapades with his wife have furnished some spicy reading for the public recently, was locked up at the central station last evening, together with his wife and another woman whose name is withheld on account of her respectability, and charged with disorderly conduct. Sergt. Kirkham arrested the trio on Washington avenue south and seventh street, where they were engaged in a free for all fight. Closterman had his wife by the throat choking her while the other woman was engaged in assaulting Closterman.

Mrs. Closterman fainted in the station last night and was only resuscitated by the aid of a doctor. Her husband has been hunting her for some time and has created scenes in the streets of Minneapolis before.

Liquor, Opium

—AND—

Tobacco Habits

BY THE USE OF DR. LESLIE E. KEELEY'S DOUBLE CHLORIDE OF GOLD REMEDIES.

Indorsed by progressive physicians, philanthropists and divines, incinding Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, who recently visited Dwight and addressed the 700 patients in line. The United States government has adopted these remedies for use in all States and National Soldiers' Homes. Carefully kept records prove 95 per cent. permanent cures; 66,000 homes already made happy. The objectionable features of Sanitarium treatment removed. No hospital; no restriction. All necessary liquors supplied during treatment. Patients are simply residents like ourselves. Terms $25 per week; board extra, $7 to $15 per week, to suit purse and inclination. Good accommodations, including baths, at the Institute.

NOTE OF WARNING.

To the Public:

As a matter of justice to ourselves and to the reputation of Dr. Leslie E. Keeley's Double Chloride of Gold Remedies for the cure of the Liquor, Opium, Morphine and Tobacco Diseases, and Neurasthenia, we warn the public that these remedies are used by no institution or sanitarium in the United States, except those established by our company under the uniform name of "THE KEELEY INSTITUTE."

All others claiming to use our remedies are frauds and impostors.

We have now sixty Keeley Institutes established in various parts of the United States, where the Keeley Treatment is administered, and the Keeley remedies sold. We, however, caution all to examine well and know that they are dealing with GENUINE REPRESENTATIVES, authorized by us, before taking treatment or purchasing remedies.

The misleading establishments use the name of "Bichloride of Gold" or similar titles. The newspapers often fail to discriminate sufficiently to know that they are imitators. This is a matter of public welfare, and hence this warning.

We desire inspection of our Institution and invite correspondence, which is strictly confidential.

Respectfully Yours,

Three of the above paid there fine.

The endorsement that was given the artistic portion of "The MacKaye Spectatorium" enterprise, at Chicago, by Herr Anton Seidl, the graet New York orchestra leader, has created considerable of a stir among musical people. After being shown the model, Mr. Seidl said to a New York Post reporter:—"This enterprise will undoubtedly lead to the establishment of a grand American Bayreuth Festival." Mr. Seidl said, in a most enthusiastic way, that at "The MacKaye Spectatorium" would be realized greater scenic marvels than had been witnessed at the German capitals. He also expressed a belief that it would inaugurate a new era in the history of stage spectacle.

John H. Pierce, of Minneapolis, representing the Keelye Institute of that city, is at the Arlington. Mr. Pierce, it will be remembered, delivered a lecture on the Keelye cure here some time since, and may make arrangements to again deliver a lecture on the subject.

Our attention has been called to a clipping from a St. Cloud paper which was published in the DISPATCH some weeks since in relation to a women by name of Guy. We are informed on reliable authority that the party is in no wise related to Arthur Guy, formerly of this city, but now of St. Paul, as stated at the time of publication, and we publish this item to set the matter right as far as it concerns him.

The petition which was presented to the city council on Monday evening, while made up largely of signatures of the residents of the third and fourth ward, also contained the names of many of our most influential business men, who were generally considered opposed to such a course. A noticeable feature was the signature of one of the aldermen who voted against its acceptance and the instructions to the mayor.

Frank W. Smith, the noted lecturer and evangelist, is to visited our city early in April for a series of evangelistic services. They will be held in the Congregational and Methodist churches. As the object of these meetings is the good of the whole city, all the people are cordially invited to contribute to their success in every possible way. A preparatory union service will be held in the Congregational church next Sunday evening.

Markham called down.

In the captiol bill discussion on Thursday Mr. Markham made the statement that the people of his district desired a new captiol, and in accordance with their wishes he should vote for the bill. The people of Aitkin county repudiate the statement. They are unanimously opposed to the scheme and object most decidedly to further tax burdens until all property, whether held by private individuals or railroads corporations shall equally share such taxes.—Aitkin Age.

A Deserved Promotion.

Clyde Warner, who has been employed with the Northern Pacific shop force for the past four or five years, and who has been time-keeper at different places on the road for about eleven years, has been appointed assistant superintendent of motive power of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg. He was called to his new place by W. T. Small, superintendent of motive power, who formerly held the same place on the Northern Pacific. A large number of the friends of Mr. Warner gathered at the Como shops yesterday and presented him with a handsome token of their esteem and best wishes for his good fortune, Mr. Egleston making an address on behalf of the employes. His departure, which will occur today, will be greatly regretted.—Pioneer Press.

The information contained in the above item will be very gratifying to the many friends of Mr. Warner and his estimiable wife who reside in this city, who wish them success and happiness in their new home. The Press is in error in regard to Mr. Warner's title. He will be chief clerk of Mr. Small, instead of his assistant.

Reform That Will Reform.

A wave of reform in the police regulations of the city swept over the city council on Monday evening, when the council adopted a resolution directing the mayor to strictly enforce the state law in regard to closing saloons and gambling. This was done in response to a monster petition to that body requesting such action. The council also authorized Mayor Hemstead to appoint as many officers as he see fit in order to comply with their instructions. The mayor on being asked if he would do as directed by the council, stated that he certainly would strictly enforce the law if the council did not recede from its position at the special meeting tomorrow evening. He had no desire to buck the council. If they wanted the city run on puritanical principles, he would close the saloons at 11 p. m. and on Sundays, stop all gambling of every kind and close the sporting houses and drive the inmates out of the city. He doubted the financial wisdom of such a course, however, as he insisted it would drive thousands of dollars of legitimate trade with lumbermen out of the city. He would show them, however, that he was not dominated by the saloons, as had been charged, and it would not be for a day but while he was in authority. Unless somebody changes his mind in regard to this matter, it looks as though we were going to have reform with a big "R."

Deaths.

William Durham, an uncle of our efficient postmaster, died on Monday, the 20th inst., at his home three and a half miles east of the city, of brights decease, aged 60 years. He has resided on his farm here for several years, and was well known and respected by all our citizens. His funeral occurred on Wednesday at the house, Rev. Geo. Davis conducting the services.

Edward Huguelet died at the sanitarium on Sunday, 19th, of plura pnuemonia, aged 23 years. He was brought here from Cromwell, where he worked for the N. P. on the section. His remains were shipped to St. Johns, Michigan, for burial.

SALOONS MUST CLOSE AT 11 P. M.

So says the Council to the Mayor at Monday Evening's Session.

The city council held a very interesting session on Monday evening, all the aldermen being present except alderman Lowe of the first ward. After the usual routine business incident to the opening of the session had been disposed of, the council considered and allowed quite a number of bills. The bill of Campbell & Smith for $10 was referred to purchasing committee and bill of Camp & McPherson to Health, Sewerage and Police Committee. The bill of J. McNaughton for $50 for services as member of the board of health was also referred to the health committee, Alderman Foglestrom making the motion. This action of the council displeased Mr. McNaughton, who ask permission to address the council on the matter, which he did, in a forcible manner. He became personal in his remarks which were directed at Alderman Foglestrom, when the president called him to order

The matter of the appointment of Geo. Bell as first engineer of the electric light plant by the superintendent was there taken up, and the appointment confirmed.

Mayor Hemstead then read a telegram from W. Graham asking for permission to open a variety theatre here. On motion the matter was referred to the Health, Sewerage and Police Committee.

A petition from the draymen that the dray license be reduced to $10 for a double team and $7 for a single team was presented, and on motion was laid on the table.

A petition from members of the Y. M. C. A. asking for free electric lights for the Y. M. C. A. building was referred to finance committee.

Applications and bonds of F. J. Stropp and R. R. Wise for liquor license were read and approved and licenses granted.

On motion ordinance No. 107, defining the duties of the electric light superintendent, received its first and second readings and was passed without a dissenting vote.

A petition containing over 600 signatures was presented by Rev. Ware, of the Presbyterian church, asking that the state laws requiring saloons to close at eleven p. m. and on Sundays, and against gambling, be enforced. Mr. Ware addressed the council at length in advocacy of the action asked for in the petition. Alderman Foglestrom made a motion that the petition be accepted and that the mayor be instructed to enforce the law. Mr. Ferris moved an amendment that it be referred to finance committee. The amendment was lost, Aldermen Ferris, Sanborn, Johnson and Parker voting aye, and Aldermen Paine, McMurtry, Foglestrom, Anderson and Williamson voting nay. The original motion was then voted on and was carried by one vote. Aldermen Paine, McMurtry, Foglestrom, Anderson and Williamson voting aye, and Aldermen Parker, Ferris, Sanborn and Johnson voting nay.

A motion was then made that the mayor be instructed to increase the police force as much as he deemed necessary, which was carried, Aldermen Paine and Foglestrom voting in the negative.

The room was then cleared and the council went into executive session. When the doors were opened a motion was carried that the chairman of the board of health be notified that R. R. Wise had placed new ice in with condemned ice in his ice house, and that he investigate the matter.

It was moved and carried that J. M. Gray, as agent for C. E. Gray, be notified to appear before the council at a special session Saturday evening, March 25th, at 7:30 p. m., and show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Motion made and unanimously carried that the city attorney be instructed to draw up an ordinance requiring all licensed saloon keepers to remove all blinds, curtains, shutters, etc., after eleven o'clock p. m. and on Sundays, so that officers will have an unobstructed view of the inside.

Council adjourned.

Katie Putnam.

Katie Putnam and her excellent company appeared here on Tuesday night in her new play entitled, "An Unclaimed Express Package," and was greeted by a large and highly appreciative audience. Miss Putnam has ever been a prime favorite since her first appearance in Seattle several years ago, and her coming is always hailed with delight by the theatre-going public. An Unclaimed Express Package is almost beautiful comedy drama affording full scope to the versatile talents of Miss Putnam. It is replete with brilliant comedy and pathos, clear in plot, and the characters are all well cast.

Miss Putnam has been on the stage for years and each succeeding year renders her more popular than the last until the name of Katie Putnam has become a household word.

No one admiring wit and pathos should fail to see this little lady, who seems to possess the magic power of controlling the feelings of her audiance at will, causing the cheek to dimple with smiles or to bedim the eye with a tear.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights Miss Putnam delighted large audiences in Little Maverick and Dad's Girl. In each and every one of her plays Miss Putnam was called before the curtain at the conclusion of every act.—Seattle Dramatic Star.

The above excellent company will appear at the opera house in this city on March 30th.

And when you are desirous of purchasing furniture call on D. M. Clark &Co.—Their new spring stock has just arrived and you should see it.

D. M. Clark & Co. have just received a large line of lace curtains, which they will retail at from $1.50 to $8.

DISTRICT COURT.

Three Indictments Against Saloon Keepers for Unlawful Selling.

District court has been in session since Monday, Judge Holland presiding. The Grand jury was in session three days and found four indictments as follows:

A. R. Davis, charged with assault.

J. M. Gray, charged with selling liquor to a minor.

Nelson J. Hatt, for selling whiskey to an habitual drunkard.

The cases disposed of this far are: Munson & Merriott vs. S. W. Searles & Co. Dismissed as to all defendants except C. H. Douglas.

H. J. Spencer vs. Henry & Bertha Theviot. Settled while on trial.

Chas. Ruffee vs. True Moores. Verdict for plaintiff $125.

Wm Isaacson vs. Matt Eresterin Verdict for plaintiff $150.

True & Wetherby vs. J. J. McDonald. Settled.

M. L. Patterson vs. Ellen Mooers and Chas Ruffee. Settled.

Wm Folks vs. John Bubar. Settled.

Leon E. Lum vs. D. M. Clark et al., and Jas. Callahan vs. Mary Callahan are court cases and will be tried next week. All the rest of the cases on the calendar as published last week were continued. The case of Petter Duchane vs. The Brainerd School District is now on trial, which is the last of the civil cases.

CHOKED HIS WIFE.

C. H. Closterman Causes Another Street Scene.

Under the above heading the Minneapolis Times adds another chapter to the recent escapades of C. H. Closterman, formerly of this city. The Times then continues:

C. H. Closterman, of Montana, whose recent escapades with his wife have furnished some spicy reading for the public recently, was locked up at the central station last evening, together with his wife and another woman whose name is withheld on account of her respectability, and charged with disorderly conduct. Sergt. Kirkham arrested the trio on Washington avenue south and seventh street, where they were engaged in a free for all fight. Closterman had his wife by the throat choking her while the other woman was engaged in assaulting Closterman.

Mrs. Closterman fainted in the station last night and was only resuscitated by the aid of a doctor. Her husband has been hunting her for some time and has created scenes in the streets of Minneapolis before.

THE GENUINE

KEELEY TREATMENT

Liquor, Opium

—AND—

Tobacco Habits

Indorsed by progressive physicians, philanthropists and divines, including Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, who recently visited Dwight and addressed the 700 patients in line. The United States government has adopted these remedies for use in all States and National Soldiers' Homes. Carefully kept records prove 95 per cent. permanent cures; 66,000 homes already made happy. The objectionable features of Sanitarium treatment removed. No hospital; no restriction. All necessary liquors supplied during treatment. Patients are simply residents like ourselves. Terms $25 per week; board extra, $7 to $15 per week, to suit purse and inclination. Good accommodations, including baths, at the Institute.

NOTE OF WARNING.

To the Public:

As a matter of justice to ourselves and to the reputation of Dr. Leslie E. Keeley's Double Chloride of Gold Remedies for the cure of the Liquor, Opium, Morphine and Tobacco Diseases, and Neurasthenia, we warn the public that these remedies are used by no institution or sanitarium in the United States, except those established by our company under the uniform name of "THE KEELEY INSTITUTE."

All others claiming to use our remedies are frauds and impostors.

We have now sixty Keeley Institutes established in various parts of the United States, where the Keeley Treatment is administered, and the Keeley remedies sold. We, however, caution all to examine well and know that they are dealing with GENUINE REPRESENTATIVES, authorized by us, before taking treatment or purchasing remedies.

The misleading establishments use the name of "Bichloride of Gold" or similar titles. The newspapers often fail to discriminate sufficiently to know that they are imitators. This is a matter of public welfare, and hence this warning.

We desire inspection of our Institution and invite correspondence, which is strictly confidential.

Respectfully Yours,

Brainerd Dispatch Supplement.

It is reported that work has been begun on the extension of the Great Northern from Park Rapids to Leech Lake.

Congressman Baldwin will urge the appointment of Harry Hawkins as governor of Alaska. Why not make it Harry Totten.

The state senate in committee of the whole have recommended for passage the woman's sufferage bill which would so change the constitution as to make women eligible to vote on all questions.

Will the democrats of Brainerd demand the removal of the St. Cloud land office to our city from Maj. Baldwin? We believe that was the inducement held out to secure his election by the leaders here.

A cadet is to be chosen from this district for West Point honors, and in the competition examination which will take place as soon as Congressman Baldwin sees fit to designate the time, some Brainerd young man might win the laurels.

The Markham railroad land taxation bill was killed in the senate on Thursday by a vote of 28 to 19. It was a just measure and should have been enacted into a law. The efforts of the railroads to defeat just legislation like this is the cause of the better feeling against corporations of that character.

The senate committee on judicial reapportionment has reported a bill which legislates out of existence the first and and fifteenth judicial districts, and attaches the counties comprising this district to the old eleventh district. This is wrong and should be fought at every step by our representatives. There is ample work in this district as it is for one judge.

About Matrimony.

In the spring a young man's fancy
Lightly turns to thoughts of love.

Thus sang Tennyson, and a poet laureate is supposed to be a judge of the sentimental feeling. The end of love, when it is mutual, is usually Marriage—sometimes not to last very long. The history of matrimony is varied and curious. To the Aryan races belongs the distinction of being the authors of monogamy—that is, thinking that a man who had one wife had his share. Among other races a man was allowed to have as many wives as he could buy, or capture in war. Among some Oriental nations polygamy is still practiced. Among monogamous peoples, women occupies the highest position in society—among polygamists she is a toil worn slave or the plaything of the idle hour. In England a man may marry his first cousin, but not the sister of his deceased wife. In the United States this restricton does not obtain. In most States, licenses are necessary, but in others, Wisconsin for instance, marriage is quite a free contract. The main point however, is to get a good wife—and one of the brightest editors in Minnesota says he owes his spouse to having transportation on the Burlington. The moral is to get your wife in some of the many cities and towns on the Burlington Route and you will make no mistake. For a list of these places, and tickets maps, etc., call on your home agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass Agent St. Paul, Minn.

From the World.

Thomas Smith, of Brainerd, is now clerking for I. M. Koop at this place.

T. D. Veon, of Brainerd, has accepted a position with R R Wise and may now be found at his establishment in this city.

A ten pound son arrived this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cressey, on First avenue.

Conductor Cole is in the sanitarium at Brainerd and two surgical operations have been performed on him. He is quite low.

Murdock lodge No. 43, ladies auxiliary of the B. of L. E., will remove from Brainerd to Staples the last of this month. The lodge will hold meetings the first and third Thursday afternoon of each month, at Miller's hall, commencing April 6th.

An Excellent Company.

The following is clipped from the colums of the Butte Miner of Feb. 21st:

As announced, Katie Putman and her excellent company appeared last night at Maguire's in the bright, pretty play of "The Unclaimed Express package." There was not a vacant seat in the house, and the reception to the little lady demonstrated once more the high favor in which she is held in Butte, for the audience joined in her joys and sorrowed in her sorrows to a degree that proved their appreciation of the acting.

Miss Puttman is the same winsome, pleasing little woman that she has ever been; now artless and gay, and anon touching a tender and responsive chord upon the pathetic side of nature. All her plays are so constructed as to give her an opportunity to display her art in the two emotions of joy and sorrow, and in each she is equally capable. The play of "The Unclaimed Express Package" has been much improved since it was last presented here, and was received with honest laughter and approved with genuine applause.

The company is an excellent one, and each member rendered his or her part to the entire satisfaction of the large audience.—This company will appear at the opera house March 30th.

Homes at the World's Fair.

There is no reason why anyone should be deterred from visiting the World's Fair by reason of possible inconvenience and uncertainty attending the securing of satisfactory hotel accommodations.

The Northern Pacific Railroad will in due time publish low excursion rates to Chicago and return for this occasion, while its double daily passenger train service, including through sleeping cars of both classes (Standard and Tourists) to Chicago, will as usual be at the head of the list in every particular.

To help you in fixing in advance upon your place of residence while attending the World's Fair, we have placed in the hands of our agent at your station a book compiled by perfectly trustworthy parties, called "Homes for Visitors to the World's Fair." This little book, which you can purchase for fifty cents, contains a list of about 9,000 private families who will accommodate visitors in Chicago during the time of the Fair, viz: May 1st to October 30th; gives their names and addresses, and number of rooms each will have to spare. The book also gives a list of the hotels and their locations; has twelve full-page large-scale maps, each representing a section of the city, so that with this information before him the intending visitor himself can, at leisure, select the quarter of the city in which he would prefer to stop, corresponding IN ADVANCE with one or more families in that locality with regard to rates and the accommodations desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Seekins have gone to Jamestown, N. D.

Mr. A Kimball has sold his greenhouse to Mr. Seekins.

Logging is progressing finely in the eastern part of the township, and those interested are reaping a good harvest from their investment.

Miss Lulu Coleman and Miss Jeannette Vinje were up last week to take the teachers examination.

The singing society has gone to pieces for a good many reasons, one especially was that they could not agree how many flats there were in the scale of "C."

Mr. H. Patterson has built quite a large ice house which he intended to let the singing socie y use, but since it has been broken up, he must find some other use besides keeping ice in it.

The town has been in terrible excitement during the past two weeks on account of the town election.

Mr. Kimball is ready now to commence shipping his radishes and lettuce.

Miss Jeannette Vinje will teach the spring term of school in Mr. Senyohl's district.

The snow is still very deep but hope spring will soon come and take it off. Christmas is coming. So is spring.

A Remarkable Discovery.

A remarkable discovery is one of the chronic proclamations of advertisers. Cubeb Cough Cure is not such, it is an established remedy with known merit, made on scientific principles by experienced chemists. It affords instant relief, and is called the SIXTY SECOND REMEDY, for it stops coughing at once, does not cure but gives temporary relief to consumptives, and absolutely cures all other affections of the throat, lungs, etc. For Croup Whooping Cough and Colds of children, Cubeb Cough Cure is valuable. For sale by druggisis in 25 and 50 cent bottles.

Sold by N. McFadden.

Slight attacks of cold often develop into Pneumonia. Statistics show that this disease is rapidly increasing in our country and is generally accompanied with fatal results. Cubeb Cough Cure will prevent Pneumonia if taken in time. It is a disease that develops suddenly, with but little warning to the patient, and if not fatal, leaves the system shattered and exhausted.

Cubeb Cough Cure prevents Pneumonia, it instantly relieves the depression, stops exhaustion by relieving the patient from severe coughing spells, keeps up the vitality, does not nauseate and thereby aids nature to restore itself. Can people afford to take any chances when Cubeb Cough Cure is within their reach in 25 and 50 cents bottles?

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But now to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated M. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.
